EVIL EYE — Helmut, the resident mascot of the Scioto Township Fire Department, casts a doubtful glance as The Herald photographer takes his portrait. Helmut joined the Scioto Fire Department in March of this year as a 3-month-old pup, and at the ripe old age of 10 months, he has become a regular fixture aboard the equipment of the fire department. Helmut accompanies the members of the STFD on all their runs, except those made by the emergency squad, according to the firemen themselves.

Scioto Twp. Firemen Proud Of New Member In Ranks

The Scioto Township Fire Department recently added a new member to its ranks. This fellow is just a little different though.

He accompanies the fire fighters on all their runs, but he doesn't help fight any fires or make any rescues. He lives at the firehouse, but doesn't act as a janitor or housekeeper. He isn't an officer of the department he is an overseer — literally. From his vantage point atop the water tanks of the department's grass fire truck, he can observe all the action.

The new member of the Scioto Twp. Fire Department is the department's dog, Helmut, a pure bred Dalmatian. Helmut and others of his breed are starting to be seen again in fire departments across the nation. In the days when horses were used to haul fire fighting equipment, it was an everyday sight to see a big Dalmatian sitting beside a fireman when the apparatus left the firehouse. For different reasons though, "fire dogs" were seen less and less as the years went by. In the days of horse drawn carriages, it was considered proper for the driver to have a Dalmatian on the seat beside him, and thus the Dalmatian became known as the coach dog or the horse dog. When fire departments began to formally organize in Europe, it was only natural to have a "horse dog" at the station to guard the equipment and horses.

Helmut was acquired in March 1977, and now is approximately 10 months old. Scioto Twp. Fire Chief Don Thrasher and Captain Chuck Parmenter purchased Helmut and they take care of his food and veterinarian bills.

According to firemen Dave Beatty and Charlie Johnson, when the alarm is sounded at the station, Helmut is immediately on his feet, and will bark incessantly until he is put on the truck to accompany the firemen.

Helmut goes on all runs except those made by the Scioto Twp. Emergency Squad. On the department's grass fire truck, a metal ring has been welded onto the top of the water tanks immediately behind the cab, and Helmut's leash is fastened to the ring. Recently the department purchased a 1976 Pierce 1,000 gallon pumper, and according to the firemen, Helmut already has reserved space on that piece of equipment, but at the same time he won't be taking space that could be used by another fire fighter.

The firemen stated that all members of the department have become attached to Helmut, and the feeling is mutual, although Helmut himself has not said so. "He knows all the firemen," said Beatty, "and he always greets us when we go to the station. But if a visitor comes by himself, he can expect to hear Helmut."

Some problems could be foreseen with an animal in a situation such as that commonly found at fires or emergencies. An animal could bite someone or react in other undesirable ways under circumstances of noise and confusion, but it is safe to say that the only precautions needed are those that someone would ordinarily use when near an animal with which they are not familiar.

So the next time you have occasion to see the Scioto Twp. fire fighters, take a quick glance for the new 4-legged guy on the back of the truck. In the rare chance that he is not aboard the truck, you'll find him back at the Scioto Township Fire Headquarters, sulking at the end of his chain.

Gunman Gives Up

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — A lone gunman held 63 people hostage at a remote religious retreat then calmly surrendered to police after his captives helped persuade him to give up.

Thomas Wilson, 26, of Bakersfield, Calif., was being held today in the psychiatric ward of the Santa Cruz County Hospital where he will undergo testing, said Chief Deputy Mark Ganghoff of the Santa Cruz Sheriff's Department.

Wilson was booked for investigation of kidnap and auto theft in the hijacking of a public bus and abduction of its four passengers and driver, Ganghoff said.

Wilson allegedly released the passengers then forced the driver to take him to the Baha'i Faith religious retreat in mountains 20 miles northwest of this coastal city.

The captives said they were able to keep up their spirits by praying and singing the gospel and folk songs they had planned for a musical show that evening.

Ken Allen, 42, one of the last hostages to be freed, said that after lengthy debate Wilson "began to be reasonable to us and take our suggestions."

Allen said Wilson finally told his captives, "Oh, you're right. We don't want anyone hurt. Let's get the hell out of here."

A police hostage negotiating team also aided in the surrender.

The incident began near nightfall Wednesday, when a man armed with a .22-caliber semiautomatic rifle and about 200 rounds of ammunition hijacked a city bus and forced it to be driven to the religious center.

He released the bus driver then burst into the center's dining room, starting a six-hour ordeal for his captives. The man forced the mixed-aged group of men, women and children against a wall, but immediately released 21 of the hostages, most of them children.

Three others were later released, leaving 37 adults, a 2-year-old and an infant hostage.

Deputies sealed off the area and established telephone contact, with most of the calls initiated by the abductor, Ganghoff said.

A spokesman at the Baha'i Faith's world headquarters in Wilmette, Ill., said Wilson "may be the same person who was removed from Baha'i membership four years ago because of psychological problems."

Wilson was released from Atascadero State Hospital, a mental hospital, "over a year ago," a spokesman said.

AP Writer Held As Spy

Editor's Note — Michael Goldsmith, veteran AP foreign correspondent, was imprisoned for 30 days recently in the Central African Empire. He was arrested July 14 and released Aug. 14. This is a first-person account of his ordeal.

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

I recovered consciousness in a bare, windowless prison cell. I was handcuffed, dressed only in my underpants and covered with blood from open flesh wounds all over my body.

For a long time I lay motionless, trying to limit the pain and to recall how I, a foreign correspondent of The Associated Press, had fallen into this situation.

The memory returned only gradually. I remembered I was on assignment in the Central African Empire and had been arrested on what I assumed correctly was the previous day, accused of being a South African spy.

On the evening of July 14, Bastille Day, I had been taken 70 miles from the capital, Bangui, to Berengo, the birthplace and residence of Emperor Bokassa I, the former sergeant in the French colonial army who had proclaimed himself the hereditary ruler of his nation.

I recalled how Bokassa, in blind fury at the supposed spy, struck me without warning with a heavy stick, knocking me to the ground and opening a gaping wound on the left side of my forehead. I remembered being kicked by Bokassa and his aides until I lost consciousness, and someone deliberately crushing my spectacles underfoot.

I guessed I must have remained unconscious for at least 15 hours. I knew at once that it would be a long time before I could hope to regain my freedom. Bokassa could not easily allow the world to see the injuries he had inflicted on me. Bokassa and his police who arrested me somehow had to find a justification for the ill-treatment.

For six days, I remained handcuffed and often with chains on my legs in the small cell where a rough concrete slab was the only furniture. Once a day, guards opened the heavy steel door to bring me some boiled manioc, an African staple root, and a mess can filled with brackish water.

No one treated my injuries, which quickly became infected. My body was covered with the bites of malaria mosquitoes. The sequel of a particularly vicious kick in the small of my back made every movement an agony. I had nothing on which to rest my aching head. During the frequent tropical rainstorms, I was bitterly cold, without blanket or cover of any kind.

Apart from occasional jibes from an army major whom I later knew as Maj. Ngongo, the prison commander, no one spoke to me, interrogated me or gave me any kind of explanation. My requests to talk to someone in a responsible position or to a representative of the American Embassy drew only laughter from the guards. Every time the cell door was opened, half a dozen soldiers pointed cocked submachineguns at me.

I was sustained by the hope that international pressure on my behalf was building up. The Deputy Chief of Mission at the U.S. Embassy, Grant

Name Hospital Nursing Chief

MRS. HELEN SHIELDS, R.N.

Helen M. Shields, R.N. was recently appointed director of nursing at Berger Hospital. Mrs. Shields will assume her new position Aug. 30.

A native of Ohio, Mrs. Shields received her basic nursing education from Cleveland, a Bachelor of Science in Nursing Education and Supervision from Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J. and a Master of Arts Degree from Kent State and Ohio Universities. She also attended George Washington University, Washington, D. C., and Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich.

The new director has varied nursing experiences. She is a veteran of three years in the U.S. Navy Nurse Corps and has been an administrative supervisor in hospitals in New Jersey and Michigan. She served in the field of Public Health in Salem, Ohio.

In 1967, Mrs. Shields assisted in the establishment of the Associated Degree Nursing Program, Youngstown State University and was a faculty member at the university for five years. In 1972, she established the practical nursing school which she is now directing. The school was established under the Gallipolis City Board of Education and was transferred to the Buckeye Hills Career Center, Rio Grande. The school recently received national accreditation under Mrs. Shields' direction.

Mrs. Shields has three children: John now residing in Columbiana, Ohio, Laurence who lives in Salem, and Maureen who lives with her mother. Maureen will attend junior high school the coming school year.

I soon made up my mind that I faced the likelihood of imprisonment until Bokassa's coronation, scheduled for Dec. 4, when a general amnesty was likely. That made a total of 143 days. I carved a calendar on my cell wall, leaving space for the four months yet to come.

Although never very strong in mathematics, I began filling in time with enormous calculations scratched on the walls. I divided telephone numbers by each other to 50 decimal points, then re-multiplied the fractions to test my accuracy. The guards decided my long rows of figures were some kind of magic and took away the small piece of plastic I used to scratch on the walls.

I never realized before how slowly empty time moves. Thoughts of my family often led to increasingly panicky, self-pitying onslaughts of fear. What would I do if Coronation Day came and went and I was not released?

A previous prisoner had carved a crucifix on one of the courtyard walls. On Aug. 11, to occupy time, I colored it

Sewage Treatment Plant Will Soon Start Operations

By CRAIG ALLISON
Herald Staff Writer

After a construction period that lasted over two years, start-up is expected soon at Circleville's new waste water treatment facility located on U.S. Route 22 West of the city.

Already long overdue in its start-up, the biggest reason that the plant has not started operations is the fact that every piece of mechanical equipment in the facility must be in working order before the city takes control of it.

If the equipment is not functioning properly, it is the responsibility of the Charles Shook Construction Company. Even after the plant starts its operations, the Shook Company is responsible for the equipment and its maintenance for one year. After that time, the city takes full responsibility for it.

Equipment is in, and for the most part everything is in working order. The equipment checks, along with a few minor loose ends, are all that stands in the way of the start-up of the facility.

The chief operator of the new sewage treatment plant, Clyde Houdeshell, and the members of the Circleville Board of Public Utilities, are now in the process of placing supervisory personnel in positions at the plant.

"Because of the late start-up, we will have to hurry our training schedule," stated Houdeshell. We have asked for additional personnel, and this is our biggest reason. If we have all personnel necessary for the smooth operation of the plant at its start-up, then all those people can receive the same identical training, and we feel this is the best way to start our operation."

The construction period of the sewage treatment plant has not always been a smooth one. Soon after the start of construction, a flood set back the work schedule. The flood was followed by a fire at the construction site and labor disputes have all combined to push back the scheduled start of the facility.

The city of Circleville also found itself in court while construction of the plant continued. The engineering firm of Hazen and Sawyer in New York City was originally contracted to design the plant. Hazen and Sawyer and the city became locked in a dispute over engineering fees and the firm filed suit for the money in Federal Court in New York. Among those summoned to New York to testify in the case were Public Utilities Director Chuck Taylor and Public Utilities Board Chairman Dr. John Bowers. Several months later the suit was dismissed and Hazen and Sawyer refiled the case in federal court in Columbus, Ohio. The outcome of the case has yet to be decided.

After the dispute with Hazen and Sawyer, the engineering firm of Floyd G. Brown and Associates took over the project. Charles Shook Construction Company of Dayton has been the building firm on the job since its start.

But now after many months of delays, the switches will be thrown and the gates opened, and approximately two million gallons of sewage a day will eventually run through the treatment process. Houdeshell stated that the entire process, from start to finish, will take approximately 16 hours to complete.

What will be the biggest problem facing personnel when operations start? Stated Houdeshell, "It

From his emergence in the mid 1950s, Presley, whose records sold millions and whose films played to hordes, shaped American culture like no entertainer before him.

His dynamic stage presence — the twitching hips, the long sideburns, thick hair and curling lip — made him the passion of America's bobby-soxers.

His music — an amalgamation of country, blues and gospel with a sassy bounce — was the vanguard of a new genre called rock 'n' roll and influenced scores of artists, many of whom were expected to attend the funeral.

Bury Elvis After Private Funeral

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — This day was for the family and the close friends of Elvis Presley, not for the clanking, clutching, adoring crowds.

As he wished it, the funeral for the 42-year-old singer was to be conducted in private, in midafternoon, with prayer and eulogy in the mansion he called home and entombment near his mother, in a cemetery not far away.

Dick Grob, the chief of Presley's personal security force, said the singer and his father, Vernon Presley, had planned his funeral.

"This is running exactly the way Elvis' father suggested it be run," Grob said. "It's been run in accordance with Elvis' wishes."

The family had planned to allow the public to view Presley's body for two hours Wednesday. The time stretched to 3½ hours but there were still about 15,000 whose pilgrimage to see Presley a final time was in vain.

Sheriff Gene Barksdale estimated that 25,000 to 30,000 walked past the seamless copper coffin. The estimate may have been generous, but the lines continued without letup for the entire 3½ hours.

Presley was dressed in a cream-colored, almost white, suit with pale blue shirt and silver tie — Christmas presents from his father.

Presley's face showed the effects of the weight he gained in his later years. On one finger was a ring with an enormous diamond.

So zealously did the family guard the private aspects of the day, that the names of those officiating at the service and most of those invited to attend were withheld.

On the evening of July 14, Bastille Day, I had been taken 70 miles from the capital, Bangui, to Berengo, the birthplace and residence of Emperor Bokassa I, the former sergeant in the French colonial army who had proclaimed himself the hereditary ruler of his nation.

I recalled how Bokassa, in blind fury at the supposed spy, struck me without warning with a heavy stick, knocking me to the ground and opening a gaping wound on the left side of my forehead. I was sustained by the hope that international pressure on my behalf was building up. The Deputy Chief of Mission at the U.S. Embassy, Grant

Smith, had witnessed my arrest so at least the outside world knew. I had not disappeared without trace.

Late on the sixth day, my situation abruptly improved. My handcuffs were removed for the first time. I was given two blankets and placed in a larger cell with a wooden plank for a bed. The following morning, a medical orderly cleaned my wounds and put six stitches in my head. And, astonishing luxury, I was brought a copious, European-style meal from a nearby hotel.

The medic came daily for ten days, gave me regular penicillin and anti-tetanus injections and may have saved my life. The good meals continued to come, once a day, until the end of my imprisonment.

But as my health improved and the pain receded, the agonizing doubts over my future increased. Day after day, I was confronted with endless hours of inactivity, almost no one to talk to and certainly no one to give me any information about the fate in store for me.

I soon made up my mind that I faced the likelihood of imprisonment until Bokassa's coronation, scheduled for Dec. 4, when a general amnesty was likely. That made a total of 143 days. I carved a calendar on my cell wall, leaving space for the four months yet to come.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market advanced slightly today, making a new bid to rally after its sharp recent losses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose a fraction in early trading.

Gainers took a small lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some buyers had been attracted by the depressed prices of many issues. They found nothing special in the economic news to account for the upswing.

Today's early prices included Nalco Chemical, off 1/4 at 28; Eastman Kodak, ahead 3/4 at 62 1/2; Citicorp, up 1/4 at 28, and Digital Equipment, 1/2 higher at 50.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 4.59 to 864.69, hitting a new 19-month low for the second straight day.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 20.92 million shares, against 19.34 million on Tuesday.

The NYSE's composite index gave up .02 to 53.51.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .18 at 119.09.

ELVIS MEMENTOS — Mrs. Regina Timmons of Stoutsville holds mementos she has of Elvis Presley — a personal thank you from the singer, an album of his songs and an embroidered scarf.

Stoutsville Woman Wrote Song About Elvis

Mrs. Art (Regina) Timmons, Stoutsville, has more than just memories of Elvis Presley.

Mrs. Timmons, a country and western singer, first saw the famous singer in Columbus several years ago. "He had some kind of magnetism about him that I just can't explain," Mrs. Timmons said. "I just felt like I had known him always."

"When I got home, I wrote a song about him and the title of the song is

"Has My Heart Known Him Before. I sent him a copy and told him how I came about writing it," she relates. A few weeks later, she received the following thank you note from Elvis Presley:

"Thanks very much for the record. It was a nice compliment and very thoughtful of you to send it. Best wishes always and may God Bless you. Sincerely, Elvis Presley."

Although Mrs. Timmons has been told the signature of the singer may some day be worth "a lot of money," she will treasure it always.

"I think we have lost one of the top people in America," she says.

Mrs. Timmons' record was played on several local radio stations shortly after she had written it and was the number two song on the housewives poll of one of the stations for a while.

She is a member of the Ohio Country and Music Assn. Born in Kentucky, she is the oldest of 11 children. Her father was a coal miner.

Mrs. Timmons sang before she was married, and then quit for about 12 years. In recent years she has begun singing again (mostly for nothing, she says) and writes many of her own songs.

Roundtown CB Club Meets

The Roundtown CB Club met recently at Ted Lewis Park for its annual family picnic.

Members present were Erma Iles, Marvene Young, Ruth Andrews, Carolyn Davis. Guests were Jim and Chris Lockard, Iline and Marie Hill, Jennifer Walisa and Micheal and Yvonda Iles.

Games were under the supervision of Chris Lockard. The money jar and door prizes were won by Erma Iles. The next regular meeting will be Sept. 12 at 350 Logan St., with refreshments furnished by Sue Lockard and Carolyn Davis, entertainment by Erma Iles and Carolyn Davis and door prize by Yvonne Adams. Members are reminded that dues will need to be paid by the September meeting.

VYF Board Meeting Held

Members of the Board of Trustees of Pickaway County Volunteers for Youth met 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of President Diane Berger.

Guests for the special board meeting were Don Phillips and Tom Mallory, representatives from the Department of Economic and Community Development in Columbus, who discussed the possibility of VFY's obtaining Federal funding through LEAA to hire a full-time coordinator.

Mallory stressed the need for a citizens' council which would act as a coordinating agent among all local organizations which provide services for juveniles, noting that such groups are now being established in many communities in Ohio.

Phillips presented specific information on the procedures for applying for federal monies through his office, noting that all funds for fiscal 1978 have already been allocated, but he added that there could be monies available to VFY which had been set aside for fiscal 1976 and 1977 but not utilized.

Board members are hopeful of obtaining such funding in order to hire a full-time coordinator for VFY, to facilitate growth and improvement of the volunteer probation program.

Phillips and Mallory have agreed to assist Volunteers for Youth in applying for the funds. They will meet with representatives of the board of trustees again in the near future.

The next in-service training program for volunteers is scheduled for September 14 at the home of Jim and Ramona Edman.

with brick dust mixed with water. Maj. Ngongo saw my effort and ordered me returned to the punishment cell for "defacing" the prison.

"That will teach you to harass us with your white man's symbols," he said to me.

Unknown to me, though, my ordeal was at an end. Before Ngongo could carry out his threat, I was taken out of the cell and returned to Berengo. There I was informed that a pathetic message from my wife had softened Bokassa's heart and I would be put on the next plane two days later. It was exactly four weeks since my arrest.

Bokassa himself appeared and lectured me without interruption for two hours. He told me over and over again that it was only the loving message he had received from my wife — and not the multiple diplomatic efforts on my behalf — that had led to my freedom.

On the final day, Sunday Aug. 14, I was again driven to Berengo and interrogated for six hours by policemen using every trick in the book to get me to incriminate my news sources in Bangui. Under threat of renewed imprisonment, I was forced to confess to "espionage, plotting to undermine the security of the state and insulting the personality of the Emperor."

AN AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL RELEASE

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market advanced slightly today, making a new bid to rally after its sharp recent losses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose a fraction in early trading.

Gainers took a small lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some buyers had been attracted by the depressed prices of many issues. They found nothing special in the economic news to account for the upswing.

Today's early prices included Nalco Chemical, off 1/4 at 28; Eastman Kodak, ahead 3/4 at 62 1/2; Citicorp, up 1/2 at 28, and Digital Equipment, 1/2 higher at 50.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 4.59 to 864.69, hitting a new 19-month low for the second straight day.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 20.92 million shares, against 19.34 million on Tuesday.

The NYSE's composite index gave up .02 to 53.51.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .18 at 119.09.

Annual Report Presented To Member-Consumers Of South Central Power

LANCASTER — More than 5,000 member-consumers of the South Central Power Company were in attendance at the locally-owned utility's 41st Annual Meeting at the Fairfield County Fairgrounds in Lancaster today, to hear General Manager R. Dane Swinehart deliver the annual report.

Swinehart stated that although 1976 was "not a year of great growth" for South Central, that "headway was made in a number of areas and we were able to meet the challenges of the coldest winter in 100 years by meeting all the electricity demands of our consumers."

General Manager Swinehart reported that the depreciated assets of the company increased almost $3.3 million and the net worth of the cooperative rose from $15,838,634 to $18,365,998. Plant investment was up over $3 million to $43,479,385.

The number of active consumers served by the utility rose over the 45,000 mark to 45,064, and the revenue billed moved past $20 million to $21,653,292, an increase of over $2 million over 1975.

"These figures indicate growth," said Swinehart, "but at a rate that is less than what was experienced prior to the inflationary spiral which began in 1974.

"More than twice as many active consumers were added to our system during 1976 as compared to 1975, but significantly, the average kilowatt hours used monthly by our consumers rose only five, from 1225 to 1230.

"We like to think that a great part of this small increase in usage is because South Central consumers realize that we are, indeed, in an energy crisis and have responded by using only the energy that they need."

The general manager told the assembled member-consumers that demand for electric power will continue to increase, not only because additional consumers are settling in South Central Country, but because the shortage and non-availability of other fuels will lead toward a greater utilization of electric power and "we must insure that our capacity keeps ahead of our growth rate."

Swinehart stated that the largest part of the revenue dollar, 67.5 per cent went for purchased power in 1976. Wages and benefits accounted for another 11.2 per cent, depreciation 5.3 per cent, interest charges 3.7 per cent, operations and maintenance expense, 5.3 per cent, margins 1 per cent and taxes 6 per cent.

So does twelve year old Amy and she stands a good chance of meeting her ambition since she already has traveled the entire midwest, most of the southern route and this summer will add a portion of the eastern area. Her state spoon collection is steadily growing.

The Paul Schein family went west this year all the way to California. They were on vacation before, during and after the Pickaway County fair and it really seemed strange not to see Mary Alice over there. She has been an advisor in 4-H and so has Paul for many, many years.

There will be one discordant note for the Bushes return because daughter Diana Eyck (Mrs. Patrick) underwent surgery this week at Grant Hospital and is not doing too well. She is in Room 543 and I am sure she would appreciate hearing from all of you. Cards mean so much.

While sending cards please remember John Meyer, Room 407, Intensive Care Unit, University Hospital, Columbus. John suffered a heart attack just prior to having a bad automobile accident Sunday. He is a good friend and fellow employee at DuPont of Papa Bill's.

Granddaughters Peggy and Becky Armentrout enriched the week-end for Una Higman. The girls came down from Fremont for a day at King's Island and then stayed over with grandmother who was so pleased to have them. Another granddaughter Lora Higman of Washington C.H. also visited so she could have some time with her cousins. The girls are just a hop, skip and jump from Cedar Point but they prefer King's Island and isn't that always the way because I have heard any number of our local folks comment how they like Cedar Point better . . . sort of "the grass is always greener" type thing, huh?

We may groan and moan about the heat of summer time but there are a few rewards such as the delicious corn on the cob from the patch of Cotton Timmons who always sees to it we have our share and then there are those "once you have eaten one none other will do" melons grown by Paul and Sue Eitel. Amy had vegetable gardening as one of her 4-H projects this time and it has been so nice having those beautiful fresh goodies and even nicer knowing they didn't cost a small fortune from the food budget.

Be with you again soon, the Lord willing. Take care.
Think About: To buy happiness you must spend kindness.

Veterans Questions Answered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each week the Circleville Herald will publish a series of questions and answers of interest to veterans. These questions and answers are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any veteran desiring further information concerning his Veterans Administration Benefits should contact the Veterans Service Officer at 219 South Court Street.

(Q.) I received educational benefits under the G.I. Bill and attended school full time. If I marry, will I lose my eligibility for these benefits?

(A.) Married children under 26 years of age do not lose their entitlement to educational benefits.

(Q.) If a military retiree dies as the result of a service connected disability, will his widow collect both the Survivor Benefit Plan annuity and VA Dependency and Indemnity Compensation?

(A.) Whenever the surviving spouse of an SBP participant is also entitled to DIC payments, the spouse's monthly payment under SBP will be reduced by the amount of the DIC payment. The total of the two monthly payments (DIC and SBP) will be equal to the full amount otherwise payable under SBP. Any premium related to the SBP annuity not paid because of DIC will be refunded to the beneficiary.

(Q.) I desire to file a claim with the VA for Total Non Service Connected Pension. Does my wife's income from employment count against me?

(A.) Your Wife's income from employment will not count against you. However, if she has income from any other source in addition to her income from employment, then that income from other sources will count against you.

(Q.) My next door neighbor receives a VA Benefit. So do I, yet I have to report my income every year to VA, and he does not. This does not seem fair.

(A.) Since you are required to report your income, you must be receiving a Pension. Pension awards are based on your income, but income is not a factor with Compensation.

(Q.) The Post Office has just changed my address from Route 1 to a road and a house number. Is it alright that I fill in the back of the envelope from my husband's Compensation check? Will this change of address form be sufficient to notify VA of your change of address?

(A.) Your Veterans Service Officer has a special form for a change of address, that will speed up the process and start your checks coming to your new address quicker. Just stop by his office; the form only takes a few minutes of your time.

Storm Damage Placed At $7.6 Million

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — Final figures on the cost of repairs to Sandusky County buildings after a damaging June 30 storm are still not available, but officials say the amount probably won't be as high as the $7.6 million predicted at first.

Ed Herman, local Disasters Services Agency director, said the first was only "an eyeball estimate" compiled 10 days after the storm. He says the cost probably will fall between $5 million and $6 million.

Most buildings and homes have been or are being repaired, although 130 residents of the county home for the elderly hit are still living in other nursing homes.

City officials and police have moved into rented office space after the storm tore the roof on the 100-year old city structure and rain damage to the interior made it uninhabitable.

Grange News

Star Grange met in regular session Tuesday evening in the basement of the church for their August meeting. A lovely carry-in supper was enjoyed preceding the meeting.

The worthy Master Carroll Reid presided over the business meeting and heard the various reports. Ethel Furniss, chairman of the Womens Activity committee thanked all who furnished pies and cake and helped with the lunch at the fair.

Helen Hammel, lecturer thanked all who helped with the fair booth and announced that we had placed fourth in the competition.

The charter was draped in memory of our deceased member, Eva Long. Thank you notes were read from Mr. and Mrs. Steve Holbrook and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Reid for the little Bibles presented their new babies. Mabel Storer sent a "Thank You" note for the flower she received while she was in the hospital and from Florence Long for the flower sent to her mother while she was in the hospital.

It was announced that Pomona Grange will meet Friday evening at the 4-H and Grange building and all members were urged to attend.

The next meeting will be held September 13 with Mrs. Helen Redman, Raymond Crabills, Winifred Bidwell and Mr. and Mrs. Otha Lewis as hostesses.

Annual Report Presented To Member-Consumers Of South Central Power

LANCASTER — More than 5,000 member-consumers of the South Central Power Company were in attendance at the locally-owned utility's 41st Annual Meeting at the Fairfield County Fairgrounds in Lancaster today, to hear General Manager R. Dane Swinehart deliver the annual report.

Swinehart stated that although 1976 was "not a year of great growth" for South Central, that "headway was made in a number of areas and we were able to meet the challenges of the coldest winter in 100 years by meeting all the electricity demands of our consumers."

General Manager Swinehart reported that the depreciated assets of the company increased almost $3.3 million and the net worth of the cooperative rose from $15,838,634 to $18,365,998. Plant investment was up over $3 million to $43,479,385.

The number of active consumers served by the utility rose over the 45,000 mark to 45,064, and the revenue billed moved past $20 million to $21,653,292, an increase of over $2 million over 1975.

"These figures indicate growth," said Swinehart, "but at a rate that is less than what was experienced prior to the inflationary spiral which began in 1974.

"More than twice as many active consumers were added to our system during 1976 as compared to 1975, but significantly, the average kilowatt hours used monthly by our consumers rose only five, from 1225 to 1230.

"We like to think that a great part of this small increase in usage is because South Central consumers realize that we are, indeed, in an energy crisis and have responded by using only the energy that they need."

The general manager told the assembled member-consumers that demand for electric power will continue to increase, not only because additional consumers are settling in South Central Country, but because the shortage and non-availability of other fuels will lead toward a greater utilization of electric power and "we must insure that our capacity keeps ahead of our growth rate."

Swinehart stated that the largest part of the revenue dollar, 67.5 per cent went for purchased power in 1976. Wages and benefits accounted for another 11.2 per cent, depreciation 5.3 per cent, interest charges 3.7 per cent, operations and maintenance expense, 5.3 per cent, margins 1 per cent and taxes 6 per cent.

The charisma of the Drummond family is still very much in effect as attested to by the fact young Joy Lynn has added more laurels to an ever growing collection. This time she received a first place plaque for her piano solo "Drifting" in competition age group 5 years through 9 years, the Ohio Grange Contests held at the Ohio State Fair, Tuesday. Results of the other contests involving area people were unknown as we prepared this column.

When our words appear in the paper we will have welcomed Gene and Dorothy Bush a happy return home from a super terrific Hawaiian vacation. After three weeks in the land of grass skirts, hula dancing, pineapple a-plenty, surfers, and glorious weather it won't be all that easy. When they departed their plans called for visiting all the islands so it will be interesting to hear an accounting of the trip since a few days were planned for California, too. I truly enjoy listening to folks describe trips they have taken.

This United States of America fascinates me and someday I hope to have been in every state. Atomic Fuel Mystery

Over the years there have been a number of reports of nuclear material "lost" from the various manufacturing facilities and reactors which process it. But not until the federal government was forced to reveal the total under the Freedom of Information Act was it known how much has been unaccounted for.

Not including two sites which for security reasons the government has excluded, more than 8,000 pounds of weapons grade enriched uranium and plutonium simply have disappeared from inventory.

Agencies from which the data was gathered uniformly deny any of the material was stolen. It is believed to have been consumed in the manufacturing process. Perhaps the best test of this assessment is the fact that no one, so far as is known, has ever attempted to use illicit uranium or plutonium in any kind of blackmail scheme.

Even so, the large volume of unaccounted material is less than reassuring. Considering that only 15 pounds of plutonium are needed to make an atomic bomb and about 3,400 pounds are missing, the disappearance factor requires greater study.

A Little Murder In All Of Us

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — Amid the psychiatric speculation on what caused "Son of Sam" to become a night-stalking killer, another fascinating question arises:

What causes us, the People, to be so totally, vicariously obsessed with these murders? We read everything, a delicious shiver slithering up our respective spines, page after page of reliving death scenes. Not content with the craziness here in New York, we have to know what they're saying about David Berkowitz in Europe. Why?

"Murder fascinates and intrigues us," according to a psychiatrist whose specialty is the analysis of the criminal mind. "Murder is a mystery, because death is beyond the experience of any living person. Trying to fathom death, we fear it — though many may wish for it — but we cannot experience death as an ultimate. So we are attracted to it, as an unknown; we yearn to seek it out, to discover what is in this twilight of shadow and mist.

"But death, despite our most ingenious efforts, guards its secret, and this secret is in part the reason for our fascination with murder. The many killings reported in the papers, usually on the front page, hardly satisfy the large number of people who in their fantasy, again and again, wish to reenact murder."

Dr. David Abrahamsen feels that the public involvement with murder (the reading of murder mysteries is an acknowledged and respected form of "relaxation") provides an "almost sexual excitement" in many persons.

Our fascination "is also rooted in our conscious or unconscious hateful and murderous wishes. While its evil repels us, it attracts us irresistibly. To a great many people murder is daring and shocking, because the killer has violently transgressed the age-old moral boundaries of society."

"But at the same time many a law-abiding citizen — secretly attracted to evil — those who have, at times, felt boundaries himself, if only he dared."

Dr. Abrahamsen sees the majority of us — those who have, at times felt angry enough to kill — living out our fantasies in reading about criminals who have, in fact, dared to kill.

At the same time, because we must push our own unconscious murderous or destructive impulses, we publicly denounce the murderer. The man or woman who is most repressive of his own inner impulses is most likely to publicly demand that the real murderer be punished in keeping with the biblical proverb "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth."

Because of his own guilt feelings, he demands that the murderer be sent to the gallows, the gas chamber, the electric chair. "In denouncing the killer," writes Abrahamsen, "he repudiates his own homicidal desires and his guilt so that he now can righteously join the outcries of his fellow citizens in condemning the murderer to his fate."

"And behind this excitement is the conscious or unconscious death wish which the individual tries to counteract by becoming righteous, smug or hypocritical. The death wish, rooted in the death instinct, which extends from unconsciously harming someone to causing his ultimate death, varies in strength."

"But it is at times so strong that I can venture the idea that if everyone carried out his death wishes, there would be no human beings alive."

I am quite certain that most of the people now reading Dr. Abrahamsen's expert opinion will conclude (as I do, definitely) that he may be talking about the majority of the population enthralled with the "Son of Sam" murders. But it doesn't apply to us when he says:

"Murder emerges from the intensity of death wishes that coexist with our life-serving emotions, just as love and hate live in us. Murder, despite our reluctance to admit it, is part of our humanity because it is rooted in human emotions."

"It is this frail and cruel side of our behaviour which makes many of us more capable than we realize of committing murder..."

No, not us. We are not potential crazies, like "Son of Sam."

And yet, another famous psychiatrist, Dr. Karl Menninger, has said, "There is little murder and a little suicide in each and every human being, waiting to be unleashed."

So possibly it is true. In our absorption with reading about the actuality of such crimes, we get some of the hidden, inner violence harmlessly out of our systems.

Cocaine now is tempting many of the "sophisticates" in the avant-garde set who believe that marijuana is getting too commonplace for their tastes.

Not only the so-called "upper" classes, but the "middle" classes and "lower" classes are finding this drug intriguing and tempting.

I know of social groups where cocaine-sniffing is almost as commonplace as a scotch-and-soda. That is distressing enough. But, when reports come in that youngsters in the 7th to 12th grades are being tempted by cocaine, the warning should be emblazoned in the sky.

Many of these people start by sniffing out of curiosity. Later, they become separate themselves from it. It's an accepted fact that there is a high degree of psychological dependence on cocaine following its use.

Although cocaine is not technically considered as addictive as heroin, users should not console themselves with the "safety" of this drug. For it is well known that cravings and an overwhelming compulsion to take more cocaine occurs as soon as the effects of sniffing have subsided.

Let there be no mistake. Cocaine is an exceedingly dangerous drug. The rapid expansion of its use in the last ten years must make us aware that cocaine has very serious social and psychological consequences. Watch out!

Council Cool To Adult Plans

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The Fort Wayne City Council gave a cool reception to City Attorney William Salin's plan to zone adult entertainment establishments.

William Salin Republican, met with the Democratic council Tuesday night to discuss his plan, which some members felt would hint official sanction of the adult shops.

Salin wants the council to prohibit adult entertainment facilities within 1,000 feet of schools, churches, residential areas or each other. It would exclude existing stores.

Salin said the proposed ordinance would be used in conjunction with one approved in May requiring the licensing of massage parlors and employees.

NEW YORK (AP) — The average employed man spends a lot more time each day at nonwork activities, such as coffee breaks and relaxing, than does the typical working woman, an ongoing study at the University of Michigan shows.

Analysis of the data, which began in 1974 and which will be continued to encompass other ways in which men and women use their time, is adding powerful documentation to the assertion that despite equal rights legislation, it's still a man's world.

A separate study, based on some of the data uncovered by Michigan's Survey Research Center, shows also that work inequality extends into the home where, said a researcher, "The men really don't help much."

To date, the study has found that the typical employed man spends 52 minutes or 11 per cent of each paid working day at nonwork activities, while the average woman spends just 35 minutes, or 8 per cent, away from assigned tasks.

The minutes and percentages exclude the lunch hour, but do include extensions of it beyond the allotted time, as well as coffee breaks and other forms of relaxation, including conversation.

The same researchers have less solid evidence indicating that the energy and effort expended during the work day is greater for women than for men.

The glaring differences, said Greg Duncan, study director, appear to be rooted in the kinds of jobs commonly assigned to men and women. "Women are more closely supervised and unable to take the breaks men do," he said.

Despite the more relaxed working day for men, the study found they make about $7 an hour, in contrast to the working woman's $4.34. And when rates are adjusted for break time, Duncan said, the figures become $8.48 and $4.86, respectively.

Adding to the disparity in the work day, the researchers found through a more subjective and less validated portion of the study that women expend 112 per cent more effort than men during the time each is working.

The studies have great potential for explaining what has often been referred to as the lagging rate of productivity increase in the United States. As Duncan said, the 40-hour week does not mean people are working 40 hours.

Perhaps of even greater importance is the use made by women of the unfolding story of inequality. While it is not a subject on which the professors express learned opinions, it is bound to find its way into labor negotiations — and even into the marriage contract.

John P. Robinson, one of the researchers and author of the recently published book, "How America Uses Time," has found that women continue to perform most household chores, even when they become fulltime "market" workers.

"The man does very little even when the woman goes to work," said Robinson, who is also director of communications research at Cleveland State University. "Women do 80 per cent of housework and childcare," he said.

Women whose main occupation is within the home usually are occupied by household chores about 50 hours a week, and even when they take on a full-time commercial job they put in another 25 hours at home.

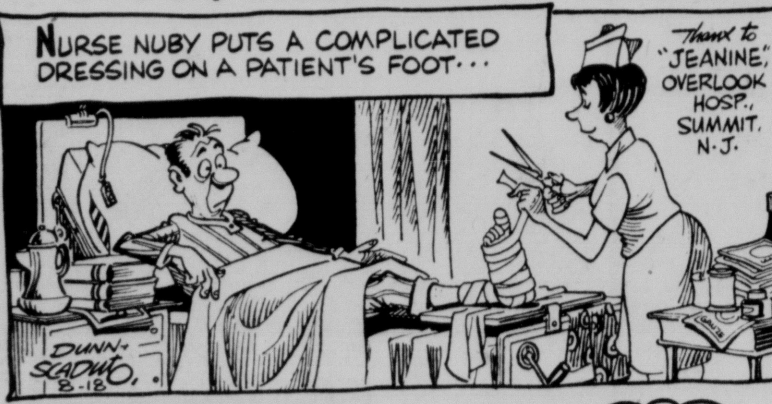

"Under those conditions the wife's time is greatly constrained," he said. "She really gets squeezed," and he added, "The men really don't help much." The man does nine hours of housework if his wife is not employed outside, but adds only one hour a week to that schedule when she leaves the house to work.

"No other activity has the sex differential there is in housework and childcare," Robinson asserted. Men seldom do the laundry, clean up after meals or make the bed, he said. And they assume only 20 per cent of childcare.

A further breakdown of childcare chores continues to reveal the same distinctions, or injustices if it is chosen to view them as such. That 20 per cent is made up of play-education, whereas woman do the feeding and dressing.

The intent of the studies is not specifically to show distinctions between the sexes but to gain a view of how America as a whole spends its time. The male-female findings are just one of the results.

A Page Of Opinion

Atomic Fuel Mystery

Over the years there have been a number of reports of nuclear material "lost" from the various manufacturing facilities and reactors which process it. But not until the federal government was forced to reveal the total under the Freedom of Information Act was it known how much has been unaccounted for.

Not including two sites which for security reasons the government has excluded, more than 8,000 pounds of weapons grade enriched uranium and plutonium simply have disappeared from inventory.

Agencies from which the data was gathered uniformly deny any of the material was stolen. It is believed to have been consumed in the manufacturing process. Perhaps the best test of this assessment is the fact that no one, so far as is known, has ever attempted to use illicit uranium or plutonium in any kind of blackmail scheme.

Even so, the large volume of unaccounted material is less than reassuring. Considering that only 15 pounds of plutonium are needed to make an atomic bomb and about 3,400 pounds are missing, the disappearance factor requires greater study.

A Little Murder In All Of Us

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — Amid the psychiatric speculation on what caused "Son of Sam" to become a night-stalking killer, another fascinating question arises:

What causes us, the People, to be so totally, vicariously obsessed with these murders? We read everything, a delicious shiver slithering up our respective spines, page after page of reliving death scenes. Not content with the craziness here in New York, we have to know what they're saying about David Berkowitz in Europe. Why?

"Murder fascinates and intrigues us," according to a psychiatrist whose specialty is the analysis of the criminal mind. "Murder is a mystery, because death is beyond the experience of any living person. Trying to fathom death, we fear it — though many may wish for it — but we cannot experience death as an ultimate. So we are attracted to it, as an unknown; we yearn to seek it out, to discover what is in this twilight of shadow and mist.

"But death, despite our most ingenious efforts, guards its secret, and this secret is in part the reason for our fascination with murder. The many killings reported in the papers, usually on the front page, hardly satisfy the large number of people who in their fantasy, again and again, wish to reenact murder."

Dr. David Abrahamsen feels that the public involvement with murder (the reading of murder mysteries is an acknowledged and respected form of "relaxation") provides an "almost sexual excitement" in many persons.

Our fascination "is also rooted in our conscious or unconscious hateful and murderous wishes. While its evil repels us, it attracts us irresistibly. To a great many people murder is daring and shocking, because the killer has violently transgressed the age-old moral boundaries of society."

"But at the same time many a law-abiding citizen — secretly attracted to evil — those who have, at times, felt boundaries himself, if only he dared." Dr. Abrahamsen sees the majority of us — those who have, at times felt angry enough to kill — living out our fantasies in reading about criminals who have, in fact, dared to kill.

At the same time, because we must push our own unconscious murderous or destructive impulses, we publicly denounce the murderer. The man or woman who is most repressive of his own inner impulses is most likely to publicly demand that the real murderer be punished in keeping with the biblical proverb "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth."

Because of his own guilt feelings, he demands that the murderer be sent to the gallows, the gas chamber, the electric chair. "In denouncing the killer," writes Abrahamsen, "he repudiates his own homicidal desires and his guilt so that he now can righteously join the outcries of his fellow citizens in condemning the murderer to his fate."

"And behind this excitement is the conscious or unconscious death wish which the individual tries to counteract by becoming righteous, smug or hypocritical. The death wish, rooted in the death instinct, which extends from unconsciously harming someone to causing his ultimate death, varies in strength."

"But it is at times so strong that I can venture the idea that if everyone carried out his death wishes, there would be no human beings alive."

I am quite certain that most of the people now reading Dr. Abrahamsen's expert opinion will conclude (as I do — oh, definitely) that he may be talking about the majority of the population enthralled with the "Son of Sam" murders. But it doesn't apply to us when he says:

"Murder emerges from the intensity of death wishes that coexist with our life-serving emotions, just as love and hate live in us. Murder, despite our reluctance to admit it, is part of our humanity because it is rooted in human emotions."

"It is this frail and cruel side of our behaviour which makes many of us more capable than we realize of committing murder..."

No, not us. We are not potential crazies, like "Son of Sam."

And yet, another famous psychiatrist, Dr. Karl Menninger, has said, "There is little murder and a little suicide in each and every human being, waiting to be unleashed."

So possibly it is true. In our absorption with reading about the actuality of such crimes, we get some of the hidden, inner violence harmlessly out of our systems.

5) Continue doing this for 20 minutes. Do not use an alarm. When you finish, sit quietly for several minutes, at first with closed eyes, and later with open eyes.

6) Do not worry about whether you are successful in achieving a deep level of relaxation. Maintain a passive attitude and permit relaxation to occur at its own pace. When distracting thoughts occur, ignore them and continue repeating "one." With practice, the technique twice daily, but not within two hours after eating.

Dear Editor:

As you know, I've been quite interested in the legislation commonly known as the "instant" registration bill. I would like to take this opportunity, made possible by an apparent pause in the political gamemanship that has occurred, to thank you, the media, for your patience, deliberation and fine efforts to keep the public informed.

It appears that the Constitutional amendment providing for the registration of voters 30 days prior to election day and for a four-year purge of voting lists will qualify for the ballot, and I sincerely feel that it will carry easily in the November general election.

However, I do feel that after this Constitutional amendment is passed, the legislature should consider a bill which would mandate boards of elections to notify by mail those persons who have not voted in four calendar years and provide with that mailing a post card which the voter would sign and return to the Board of Elections, thereby automatically reinstating his registration. This would continue the practice that has been used for many years, prior to the passage of Senate Bill No. 125, and could in itself be construed a type of "permanent" registration.

Thanks again for your kind cooperation.

Very truly yours,
TED W. BROWN

South Central Power Consumers Warned Of Crisis Years Ahead

LANCASTER — R. Dane Swinehart, General Manager of South Central Power Company, told more than 5000 member-consumers assembled for the 41st annual meeting of the locally-owned power company here today, that although there have been no shortages of electrical energy as yet in South Central Country, we have to face the fact that not only Ohio, but the whole nation, could experience a lack of adequate electrical supply.

"Based upon historic growth patterns," Swinehart said, "our supply will be adequate for the next five to six years, but many questions remain unanswered. For instance, what effect will the natural gas shortage of last winter have upon accelerated conversion to, and new uses of, electricity? Will more stringent conservation efforts by power users offset the spurt in demand that could result from new construction and expansion in an improving economic atmosphere? And what effect will new regulations on nuclear generation have on further curbing the growth of nuclear power, which many have pegged to fill the energy gap in the next few years?"

Swinehart went on to say that estimates of our national needs indicate that in just a few short years the demand for electricity could double. If that happens, he predicted that it does not seem probable that enough coal-fired generating plants could be built, or even enough coal mined, to satisfy that need, even if there were a national effort in that direction, which is certainly not the present case.

Part of the problem, he said, is that much of the general public still doubts the seriousness of the energy shortage, and soon there will not be enough time to rectify the problem "without a period of crisis that will make those of this past winter seem tame by comparison."

"Conservation is certainly a necessity in dealing with the nation's growing energy problems," he said, "but at the same time, additional power must be provided in an on-going and planned manner."

He pointed out that another prime consideration now and in the years to come is environmental protection. To insure that the ever growing list of rules and regulations in this area is met, will continue to be a full time and expensive task. Until present trends are reversed, protection of our planet threatens the availability of the increased electric power generation that this country will need in just a few years.

"Hopefully," Swinehart concluded, "a realistic balance can be found soon. One which will allow for the necessary protection of the health and welfare of mankind in the areas of clean air and water, without jeopardizing the supplies necessary to meet mankind's need for heat, light and energy."

Cardinal Unit No. 3, scheduled to start producing electrical energy for South Central Power consumers later this year, will cost approximately $330 million; more than four times the original unit of similar size completed nine years ago.

Swinehart said he included news of the Cardinal Plant in his report to the locally-owned power company's consumers because of its high capital cost and the importance of assured future power supply.

"Presently," he said, "the Cardinal Generating Plant consists of two units similar to the one under construction, with Unit No. 1 owned by the Ohio

Power Company and Unit No. 2 owned by Buckeye Power, Inc., which is, in turn, owned by the Electric Cooperatives in Ohio.

"South Central, the largest of Ohio's rural electric cooperatives, owns an equity position of about 23 per cent in these generating facilities. This represents an investment of nearly $100 million — more than twice the amount we have invested in our distribution facilities.

"The addition of Unit No. 3 comes just in time, as the power output of Unit No. 2 is being fully utilized by the requirements of its cooperative owners and the use of electricity continues to rise. Therefore, Unit No. 3 will supply the badly needed generating capacity required to ensure our consumers of an adequate power supply for the next few years."

Recalling last year's extremely cold weather, Swinehart told his audience that a new system-peak had been established during the past winter.

"Our wholesale power," he said, "is purchased from the Cardinal Generating Station (Buckeye Power) on a 'ratchet' or minimum bill basis. This means that the cost of the power purchased is based upon an established percentage, which is 75 per cent of the highest demand created in the previous 12 months. Any month that South Central's power demands falls below the 75 per cent minimum figure, we must pay the difference between what is utilized and that 75 per cent minimum figure.

"Due to the new peak, the total cost to South Central for unused demand will soar to an all-time high in 1977.

"It should be noted that our records indicate this new peak would have been even higher were it not for the efforts of many conservation-conscious consumers. Those individuals practiced voluntary "Peak Shaving" and "Load Management" between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. on days when the outside temperature went down to 20 degrees F and the chill factor was 10 degrees or colder.

"The net result of these consumers using the least amount of electric power possible during these hours and under those conditions is dollar savings on purchased power that has a direct effect on the electric bills of all our consumers."

South Central Power Consumers Warned Of Crisis Years Ahead

LANCASTER — R. Dane Swinehart, General Manager of South Central Power Company, told more than 5000 member-consumers assembled for the 41st annual meeting of the locally-owned power company here today, that although there have been no shortages of electrical energy as yet in South Central Country, we have to face the fact that not only Ohio, but the whole nation, could experience a lack of adequate electrical supply.

"Based upon historic growth patterns," Swinehart said, "our supply will be adequate for the next five to six years, but many questions remain unanswered. For instance, what effect will the natural gas shortage of last winter have upon accelerated conversion to, and new uses of, electricity? Will more stringent conservation efforts by power users offset the spurt in demand that could result from new construction and expansion in an improving economic atmosphere? And what effect will new regulations on nuclear generation have on further curbing the growth of nuclear power, which many have pegged to fill the energy gap in the next few years?"

Swinehart went on to say that estimates of our national needs indicate that in just a few short years the demand for electricity could double. If that happens, he predicted that it does not seem probable that enough coal-fired generating plants could be built, or even enough coal mined, to satisfy that need, even if there were a national effort in that direction, which is certainly not the present case.

Part of the problem, he said, is that much of the general public still doubts the seriousness of the energy shortage, and soon there will not be enough time to rectify the problem "without a period of crisis that will make those of this past winter seem tame by comparison".

"Conservation is certainly a necessity in dealing with the nation's growing energy problems," he said, "but at the same time, additional power must be provided in an on-going and planned manner."

He pointed out that another prime consideration now and in the years to come is environmental protection. To insure that the ever growing list of rules and regulations in this area is met, will continue to be a full time and expensive task. Until present trends are reversed, protection of our planet threatens the availability of the increased electric power generation that this country will need in just a few years.

"Hopefully," Swinehart concluded, "a realistic balance can be found soon. One which will allow for the necessary protection of the health and welfare of mankind in the areas of clean air and water, without jeopardizing the supplies necessary to meet mankind's need for heat, light and energy."

Cardinal Unit No. 3, scheduled to start producing electrical energy for South Central Power consumers later this year, will cost approximately $330 million; more than four times the original unit of similar size completed nine years ago.

Swinehart said he included news of the Cardinal Plant in his report to the locally-owned power company's consumers because of its high capital cost and the importance of assured future power supply.

"Presently," he said, "the Cardinal Generating Plant consists of two units similar to the one under construction, with Unit No. 1 owned by the Ohio

Power Company and Unit No. 2 owned by Buckeye Power, Inc., which is, in turn, owned by the Electric Cooperatives in Ohio.

"South Central, the largest of Ohio's rural electric cooperatives, owns an equity position of about 23 per cent in these generating facilities. This represents an investment of nearly $100 million — more than twice the amount we have invested in our distribution facilities."

"The addition of Unit No. 3 comes just in time, as the power output of Unit No. 2 is being fully utilized by the requirements of its cooperative owners and the use of electricity continues to rise. Therefore, Unit No. 3 will supply the badly needed generating capacity required to ensure our consumers of an adequate power supply for the next few years."

Recalling last year's extremely cold weather, Swinehart told his audience that a new system-peak had been established during the past winter.

"Our wholesale power," he said, "is purchased from the Cardinal Generating Station (Buckeye Power) on a 'ratchet' or minimum bill basis. This means that the cost of the power purchased is based upon an established percentage, which is 75 per cent of the highest demand created in the previous 12 months. Any month that South Central's power demands falls below the 75 per cent minimum figure, we must pay the difference between what is utilized and that 75 per cent minimum figure."

"Due to the new peak, the total cost to South Central for unused demand will soar to an all-time high in 1977."

"It should be noted that our records indicate this new peak would have been even higher were it not for the efforts of many conservation-conscious consumers. Those individuals practiced voluntary 'Peak Shaving' and 'Load Management' between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. on days when the outside temperature went down to 20 degrees F and the chill factor was 10 degrees or colder."

"The net result of these consumers using the least amount of electric power possible during these hours and under those conditions is dollar savings on purchased power that has a direct effect on the electric bills of all our consumers."

Doesn't Care A Fig Leaf For Nudism

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been interested in nudism for some time, and has tried to get me to go to a nudist camp with him. I have nothing against nudist camps, but I'm just not the type who could strip down naked in front of strangers.

We've had many arguments about this, and have even come close to getting a divorce over it. I don't see how normal people can go to a place like that without getting a few "evil" thoughts. Am I wrong to think this way, or am I evil-minded?

Do you think a man who really loved his wife would want her to go naked in front of other men?

Kappler To Remain Free

LUENEBURG, West Germany (AP) — Escaped Nazi war criminal Herbert Kappler is in the Luenenburg area, where he probably will be allowed to live out his life as a free man, District Attorney Gerhard Reifenberg said today.

Reifenberg confirmed that West Germany's constitution prohibits Kappler's extradition to Italy to complete serving a life sentence.

Earlier, West German police said they called off their hunt for the ailing, 70-year-old wartime Gestapo chief in Rome because of the constitutional ban.

Kappler, reported dying of intestinal cancer, was smuggled out of a Rome military hospital early Monday by his wife. Italian officials said his illness had reduced him to 105 pounds, and she apparently took him out in a big suitcase.

West German officials said Mrs. Kappler telephoned Monday that she had brought her husband to West Germany, but his whereabouts were not known. Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti ordered his ambassador in Bonn to begin extradition proceedings, and a police hunt was ordered for the missing man.

The Federal Criminal Office in Wiesbaden announced Tuesday night that the police were no longer involved. It said the courts would have to decide whether action might be taken

O'Hair Debates Currency Phrase

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair will carry her campaign to have the phrase "In God We Trust" removed from U.S. currency to Huntington Saturday night.

She will debate the Rev. Bob Harrington, a Southern Baptist preacher who says he has challenged Miss O'Hair to 10 debates across the country with an audience vote at the end of each contest.

"I have agreed never to fight her again if I don't beat her 10 to one. I dare her to stop if I beat her 100 to one," the Rev. Harrington said.

Miss O'Hair helped bring the case to the U.S. Supreme Court which resulted in a ban on prayer in public schools.

The debate will be at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Field House.

repeatedly asked the Italian government to send him home to die.

The constitutional ban on extradition already is protecting about 250 Germans sentenced in absentia for war crimes by French courts.

Kappler had served 30 years of a life sentence for ordering the 1944 Ardeatine Caves massacre in Rome of 335 Italians. They were shot in reprisal for the death of 32 German soldiers in a partisan ambush in Nazi-occupied Rome.

Kappler's escape touched off protests from partisan veterans and Italian Jewish groups. Thousands attended a memorial service Tuesday at the Ardeatine Caves.

Fearing hostile demonstrations, Andreotti and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt postponed a meeting they had planned for Friday in Verona.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair will carry her campaign to have the phrase "In God We Trust" removed from U.S. currency to Huntington Saturday night.

She will debate the Rev. Bob Harrington, a Southern Baptist preacher who says he has challenged Miss O'Hair to 10 debates across the country with an audience vote at the end of each contest.

"I have agreed never to fight her again if I don't beat her 10 to one. I dare her to stop if I beat her 100 to one," the Rev. Harrington said.

Miss O'Hair helped bring the case to the U.S. Supreme Court which resulted in a ban on prayer in public schools.

The debate will be at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Field House.

repeatedly asked the Italian government to send him home to die.

The constitutional ban on extradition already is protecting about 250 Germans sentenced in absentia for war crimes by French courts.

Kappler had served 30 years of a life sentence for ordering the 1944 Ardeatine Caves massacre in Rome of 335 Italians. They were shot in reprisal for the death of 32 German soldiers in a Partisan ambush in Nazi-occupied Rome.

Kappler's escape touched off protests from Partisan veterans and Italian Jewish groups. Thousands attended a memorial service Tuesday at the Ardeatine Caves.

Fearing hostile demonstrations, Andreotti and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt postponed a meeting they had planned for Friday in Verona.

Helen and Frank Williams, daughter Pauline and husband Richard Rush have just returned from a 12 day 6,000 mile trip covering 14 states over the North Western part of the United States.

Little Brian Thompson spent some time last week in Mt. Carmel Hospital and Children's, trying to combat a high fever. He is home now and feeling much better.

Judy Schooley and Patricia Lucas of Route 2 Orient have returned from their 10 day stay in the Grand Bahamas Islands. The girls flew non-stop by jet, landing at Freeport. Judy and Patricia are employed at Ross Lab. where Patricia is Supervisor. Judy is the daughter of Doris Hoover and William I. Schooley. (Ask them about their ride in the elevator).

Ned Wilson is recuperating very well, following his open heart surgery in Riverside Hospital, and is hoping to be released very soon, anxious to get back to work I guess.

Lily Jackson and daughter Carolyn spent last weekend near Fayetteville, West Virginia visiting with daughter Joan and family and being guests at a baby shower for her Granddaughter.

The Null's hosted a picnic on their lawn Saturday following the Grand Parade, to approximately 50 people, which after the dinner many of them went to the schoolhouse to view the crafts, flower show, the Firemen's water battle and looking over the fair. The honored guests for the picnic was Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, his wife Betty and son Robbie.

The 1977 Commercial Point Homecoming was a huge success, many pounds of fish was sold, on Saturday every where you looked people were setting up picnic tables, I noticed Jerry Rasor had his traditional picnic, friends and relatives.

Our square dance caller, Toadie Reed, informed us that he started his calling career when he was 16-years-old. That gives him 50 years of calling for square dances. I think that sets a pretty fine record. We hope he has 50 more. He was also a former resident here.

The Girl Scout Troop 1084 would like to take this opportunity to say "THANKS" to everyone that donated pies to them for the Homecoming. It was a huge success and far exceeded anything they had expected. They were very pleased with the generosity of this community, in and out of town.

Six Pence School

Has Fall Openings

Six Pence School of Columbus has announced limited enrollment openings are available for both elementary and secondary students this fall.

The school is the only independent, non-profit agency in the Central Ohio area offering remedial and compensatory programs at all school-age levels for mild to moderate learning, behavioral, and emotional-related school problems. In addition, there is a work-orientated program for teenagers, as well as out-of-school youth, offering evaluation, work-adjustment, placement, and follow-up counseling to help meet the needs of those young people unable to succeed by usual standards.

A few partial scholarships, up to 50 per cent are granted through donations by local businesses, but the referring agency and family must arrange for cost of service when other sources are not available.

Further information may be obtained by calling or writing Director Marvin E. Baker, Six Pence School, 3589 E. Main St., Columbus, Ohio, 43213, or phone 231-4564.

Lee Oswald's Mother Continues Stand

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Alone and without fanfare, Marguerite Oswald turned 70 last month, saying, "With all I've been through, just being 70 is enough."

"Who needs a birthday cake?" As defiant as ever, the silver-haired, self-styled "mother of history" remains unwavering in defense of her son, Lee, named by the Warren Commission as the lone assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

"The Warren Commission was wrong," she snapped.

Sharing a frosty beer with a visitor in her modest, immaculate brick home, she launched at once into the most recent area of indignation, a published contention she is "now aging and in ill health."

Eyes flashing, she produced a copy of a letter mailed to news media, in which she declared:

"I'll admit to the aging; it's a natural process. But to say I'm in ill health is a gross error and I consider it an effort to discredit me. ... 'I don't feel my age, don't look it and have never been sick a day in my life. I'll bet the author can't say the same thing.'"

Indeed, time has taken no apparent toll on the stocky firebrand in the 14 years since the assassination and subsequent killing of her son by Jack Ruby in the basement of the Dallas County Jail. "I've never seen a doctor, never taken an aspirin," she said. "I've fooled 'em all by living 14 years and remaining in good health."

Mrs. Oswald discussed her way of life reluctantly, preferring to attack authors and critics who have assailed her and her son.

"I've experienced and survived this trauma," she said. "I've lived it and I know it. What do the critics know? ... I may look stupid, but I know everything" that's going on. Don't kid yourself about that."

She is an incessant reader, and her library overflows with books on the assassination and the presidency, on Cuba and Russia, where Lee Harvey Oswald visited, and on New Orleans, where her son spent much of his youth.

"I'm very interested in everything going on in this case," Mrs. Oswald said. "I hope sometime to have an opportunity to change some of the things that have been said — an opportunity to write the truth."

"I don't really have to investigate anymore; it's just a matter of keeping on top of things as they come up. If a book comes out on the assassination, there's no putting it down — even if it takes all night and the next day."

She recently read Victor Lasky's "It Didn't Start with Watergate" and Bernard Fensterwald Jr.'s book on the assassination, "Coincidence or Conspiracy?" And she said she is waiting with more than casual interest for the October release of "Marina and Lee," as told by Lee Oswald's widow, Marina, to Priscilla Johnson McMillan.

"I'm glad Marina's book is being published, but I wonder why they waited 14 years," she said.

Mrs. Oswald said she has spoken neither to Marina nor another son, Robert Oswald, since November 1963. "I called them a couple of times, but they either wouldn't talk to me or hung up."

She said she doesn't know why, adding, "I don't really give a damn. I've always been pretty much on my own and I've accepted that."

"This is just part of what I've gone through."

Much more distressing, she indicated, is the continuing disinterest of publishers for a book by Marguerite Oswald.

"Robert had his book, and Marina's is coming out in October. He had a story to tell and Marina has a story to tell and I have a story to tell," she said.

"I can't understand why I don't have a book. ... I think the publishers are under the impression I'm just a mother defending her son. ... I'm going to defend Lee Harvey Oswald until the day I die, but I'm not going to take up for him. There's a difference."

"I don't want to appear I'm pushing for a book but, after all, I am the mother of the man accused of killing the President of the United States."

She lives, she said, on Social Security, occasional fees for interviews and the sale of unspecified "personal property."

Her days, she insisted, are "simply not long enough. I cook, clean house, keep the lawn, pay bills, shampoo my hair, and of course, read a lot and make notes."

"This is not an ordinary case and I'm not an ordinary person. But I eat well, I sleep well and I have a free mind. ... After 14 years of suppression and distortions, I'm proud to have survived."

"I do not feel sorry for myself because I think I'm finally coming into my own. ... I just can't understand why I don't have a book ..."

The Volunteer Firemen answered the following calls: Aug. 12, mutual aid with Bloom Township Fire Department on barn fire on Goodman Road, 1 mile south of London-Lancaster Road, barn was destroyed; Aug. 14, rear dual wheel on trailer of semi-rig on fire at State Route 752 and U.S. Route 23, heavy damage to wheels and tires.

The Rev. John Morgan will be the guest speaker at the Zion United Methodist Church on Aug. 28. The Morgans are now residents of Lucasville and he was the former pastor of the Zion Church.

A carry-in dinner will be held in the social room of the church honoring the Morgans at 1 p.m. the same day.

Anyone in the community is most welcome to attend the church service and the dinner, this is not just for members of the Zion Church. The Morgans have said they wish to see all of the many friends they made while serving in Ashville.

Members of the Palmetto K. P. Lodge who have not been a member of the lodge bowling team in the past few years but now wish to bowl this winter season are asked to contact Don Rathburn.

Don't forget the Farmers and Merchants Market which is to be held in the Village this Saturday. Let's try to make this one the best yet. The members of the Everfaithful Class of the Zion Church will be having their stand in front of Clifton's Auto Parts as usual.

Visitors at the Dick Pobst home for the past week have been Mr. and Mrs. Jay Pobst of Salisbury, Maryland and Sandi Pobst of Baltimore, Md. Also visiting for two days last week were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Pobst of Seaford, Del.

TOPS OH853 welcomed two new members at the Wednesday morning meeting. They would like to see more new members so if you would like to have a "new you" by Labor Day, Halloween or Christmas why not plan on joining now. Anyone is most welcome. TOPS stands for Take Off Pounds Sensibly and that is the theme of each meeting.

The contest just ended was won by Chris Shockley of Mt. Sterling with a 5¾ pound weight loss. Pat Bell won second prize with a 2¾ pound loss. A new contest has been started so why not join now and see if you can win.

If you want any information call 983-2449 or 983-3626.

A picnic for the Teays Valley Little League members and their families will be held at the Ashville Park on August 25th at 6 p.m. Each family attending is asked to bring a well filled basket, beverage and table service. For any further information you may contact Herb Wellington at 983-3950.

The Esquire Rank will be conferred on Glenn Groves at the Aug. 24 meeting of the K. P. Lodge. All members are urged to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cline were hosts Sunday in their Buckeye Lake Home to the members of their Sunday School Classes of the Zion United Methodist Church. Those present also helped Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fortner to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary and Bill's birthday. The afternoon was spent in boat riding and visiting. A bountiful carry-in picnic was served at the noon hour.

Those attending were the Rev. and Mrs. D. S. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fortner, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Foreman, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. John Disbennett, Mr. and Mrs. Don Diehl, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Canter, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Eccard, Mary Kaiser, Wilma Wardell, Helen Valentine, Hazel Ward, Doris Cline, Jean Cline, and Glenn Cline.

All had a wonderful time and thank the Clines for having them.

Cub Pack 170 Holds Summer Meeting

Cub Pack 170 held its summer meeting Friday at 500 Renick Ave. It was a carryin dinner and campout combined.

Members of Den 2 were awarded Bobcat and year pins. They included Mike Rutter, Randy Stewart, Danny Thompson, Mark Campbell, Jeff Collins and David Thompson.

Winners of the bike rodeo held in June were announced. They were: John Mogan, third place for eight year olds; Randy Stewart, second place in eight year olds and Bryan Barton. The pack received a banner for participating.

For participating in the three summer activities, the pack will be receiving the National Summertime Awards.

Pat Higgins, district scout executive, spoke briefly at the meeting.

Mrs. Marg Mogan, cubmaster and den leader, and Mrs. Kathryn Stewart, den leader, were chaperons for the campout.

Pharmacology Meet To Be Held At OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Innovations in pharmacology will be explored at the annual meeting of the American Society for Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics Saturday and Sunday at Ohio State University.

Topics discussed will include cardiovascular and respiratory diseases, drug therapy for cancer, causes and treatment of neurological diseases and mental illness, effects of drugs and environmental toxins on the lungs and consumer and legislative problems.

About 1,700 pharmacologists from throughout the United States are expected to attend. Pharmacology is the study of the preparation, qualities and uses of drugs.

Thursday mornings at 9:15 a.m. at the Circle D Lanes. If you are interested in joining the league you are asked to call Shirley Rathburn.

Miss Beth Beavers was the guest of honor at a kitchen and pantry shower at the home of Mrs. Dick Pobst. Co-hostesses were Brenda Gibson and Diana Ett. Miss Beavers will be the bride of Robert Severs Jr. of Springfield on Sept. 10.

Beth opened her many gifts under a yellow and green umbrella. Prizes for the games were won by Sandi Pobst and Amy Fraim.

Those attending besides the honored guest and hostesses were Mrs. Robert Severs Sr., and Susie, Mrs. Arnold Beavers, Mrs. Thomas Meier, Mrs. Suzanne Carr and Chris, Mrs. Danny Kaufmown, Jewell and Sandi Pobst, Mrs. Carol Baylor and Sherry, Marilyn Bowshier, Mrs. Glenn Ett, Lou Zwayer, Deb Boshier, Mrs. Edgar Brinker, Amy Fraim, Debbie Hildenbrand, Mrs. Wayne Eisker, Mrs. Cy Stickel and Amy Wallace.

Gifts were sent by Helen Emerine, Carol Hines and Stephanie Fraim. Refreshments of frozen fruit salad, cake and punch were served from a table decorated in yellow and green.

Charles F. Puckett wishes to thank his friends in Ashville and Pickaway County for their cards and prayers during hospitalization.

A meeting of the Ashville Belles Bowling League will be held 10 a.m. Aug. 23 at the Ashville Park.

TV Initiates Work-Study Program

Richard Groff, Occupational Work Adjustment Coordinator from 1972 - 1976, has been named coordinator for the state sponsored Occupational Work Experience Program (O.W.E.) which has been added to the curriculum at Teays Valley High School.

The O.W.E. Program is designed to provide occupational orientated students, not presently achieving at their highest level, an opportunity to complete their high school education. At the same time, through classroom instruction and work experience, they will develop the necessary attitudes, skills, and abilities which will enable them to be gainfully employed after graduation. The maximum class size is 25 and the selection procedures have been established by the State Department of Education.

O.W.E. students will spend the early part of the school day in the classroom and at least three hours per day will be spent working in the establishments of cooperating employers.

Employers interested in the program may contact Groff at Teays Valley High School. Phone 983-3131 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Registration Open At Pickaway School

Alfred Gabriel, principal of the Pickaway Township School, announces that all students new to the area who have not registered, should register for school immediately.

Elementary students should register in the principal's office on the first floor of the school, 28158 Kingston Pike. Students may be registered 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday.

A birth certificate and immunization record is required when registering first grade students. Registration at Pickaway Township is not necessary if children have attended the McDowell Exchange Kindergarten.

The opening date is Aug. 29 for a full day of school.

The Volunteer Firemen answered the following calls: Aug. 12, mutual aid with Bloom Township Fire Department on barn fire on Goodman Road, .1 mile south of London-Lancaster Road, barn was destroyed; Aug. 14, rear dual wheel on trailer of semi-rig on fire at State Route 752 and U.S. Route 23, heavy damage to wheels and tires.

The Rev. John Morgan will be the guest speaker at the Zion United Methodist Church on Aug. 28. The Morgans are now residents of Lucasville and he was the former pastor of the Zion Church.

A carry-in dinner will be held in the social room of the church honoring the Morgans at 1 p.m. the same day.

Anyone in the community is most welcome to attend the church service and the dinner, this is not just for members of the Zion Church. The Morgans have said they wish to see all of the many friends they made while serving in Ashville.

Members of the Palmetto K. P. Lodge who have not been a member of the lodge bowling team in the past few years but now wish to bowl this winter season are asked to contact Don Rathburn.

Don't forget the Farmers and Merchants Market which is to be held in the Village this Saturday. Let's try to make this one the best yet. The members of the Everfaithful Class of the Zion Church will be having their stand in front of Clifton's Auto Parts as usual.

Visitors at the Dick Pobst home for the past week have been Mr. and Mrs. Jay Pobst of Salisbury, Maryland and Sandi Pobst of Baltimore, Md. Also visiting for two days last week were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Pobst of Seaford, Del.

TOPS OH853 welcomed two new members at the Wednesday morning meeting. They would like to see more new members so if you would like to have a "new you" by Labor Day, Halloween or Christmas why not plan on joining now. Anyone is most welcome. TOPS stands for Take Off Pounds Sensibly and that is the theme of each meeting.

The contest just ended was won by Chris Shockley of Mt. Sterling with a 5¼ pound weight loss. Pat Bell won second prize with a 2¾ pound loss. A new contest has been started so why not join now and see if you can win.

If you want any information call 983-2449 or 983-3626.

A picnic for the Teays Valley Little League members and their families will be held at the Ashville Park on August 25th at 6 p.m. Each family attending is asked to bring a well filled basket, beverage and table service. For any further information you may contact Herb Wellington at 983-3950.

The Esquire Rank will be conferred on Glenn Groves at the Aug. 24 meeting of the K. P. Lodge. All members are urged to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cline were hosts Sunday in their Buckeye Lake Home to the members of their Sunday School Classes of the Zion United Methodist Church. Those present also helped Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fortner to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary and Bill's birthday. The afternoon was spent in boat riding and visiting. A bountiful carry-in picnic was served at the noon hour.

Those attending were the Rev. and Mrs. D. S. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fortner, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Foreman, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. John Disbennett, Mr. and Mrs. Don Diehl, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Canter, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Eccard, Mary Kaiser, Wilma Wardell, Helen Valentine, Hazel Ward, Doris Cline, Jean Cline, and Glenn Cline.

All had a wonderful time and thank the Clines for having them.

Cub Pack 170 Holds Summer Meeting

Cub Pack 170 held its summer meeting Friday at 500 Renick Ave. It was a carryin dinner and campout combined.

Members of Den 2 were awarded Bobcat and year pins. They included Mike Rutter, Randy Stewart, Danny Thompson, Mark Campbell, Jeff Collins and David Thompson.

Winners of the bike rodeo held in June were announced. They were: John Mogan, third place for eight year olds; Randy Stewart, second place in eight year olds and Bryan Barton. The pack received a banner for participating.

For participating in the three summer activities, the pack will be receiving the National Summertime Awards.

Pat Higgins, district scout executive, spoke briefly at the meeting.

Mrs. Marg Mogan, cubmaster and den leader, and Mrs. Kathryn Stewart, den leader, were chaperons for the campout.

Pharmacology Meet To Be Held At OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Innovations in pharmacology will be explored at the annual meeting of the American Society for Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics Saturday and Sunday at Ohio State University.

Topics discussed will include cardiovascular and respiratory diseases, drug therapy for cancer, causes and treatment of neurological diseases and mental illness, effects of drugs and environmental toxins on the lungs and consumer and legislative problems.

About 1,700 pharmacologists from throughout the United States are expected to attend. Pharmacology is the study of the preparation, qualities and uses of drugs.

Thursday mornings at 9:15 a.m. at the Circle D Lanes. If you are interested in joining the league you are asked to call Shirley Rathburn.

Miss Beth Beavers was the guest of honor at a kitchen and pantry shower at the home of Mrs. Dick Pobst. Co-hostesses were Brenda Gibson and Diana Ett. Miss Beavers will be the bride of Robert Severs Jr. of Springfield on Sept. 10.

Beth opened her many gifts under a yellow and green umbrella. Prizes for the games were won by Sandi Pobst and Amy Fram.

Those attending besides the honored guest and hostesses were Mrs. Robert Severs Sr., and Susie, Mrs. Arnold Beavers, Mrs. Thomas Meier, Mrs. Suzanne Carr and Chris, Mrs. Danny Kaufmown, Jewell and Sandi Pobst, Mrs. Carol Baylor and Sherry, Marilyn Bowshier, Mrs. Glenn Ett, Lou Zwayer, Deb Boshier, Mrs. Edgar Brinker, Amy Fram, Debbie Hildenbrand, Mrs. Wayne Bisker, Mrs. Cy Stickel and Amy Wallace.

Gifts were sent by Helen Emerine, Carol Hines and Stephanie Fram. Refreshments of frozen fruit salad, cake and punch were served from a table decorated in yellow and green.

Charles F. Puckett wishes to thank his friends in Ashville and Pickaway County for their cards and prayers during hospitalization.

A meeting of the Ashville Belles Bowling League will be held 10 a.m. Aug. 23 at the Ashville Park.

TV Initiates Work-Study Program

Richard Groff, Occupational Work Adjustment Coordinator from 1972 - 1976, has been named coordinator for the state sponsored Occupational Work Experience Program (O.W.E.) which has been added to the curriculum at Teays Valley High School.

The O.W.E. Program is designed to provide occupational orientated students, not presently achieving at their highest level, an opportunity to complete their high school education. At the same time, through classroom instruction and work experience, they will develop the necessary attitudes, skills, and abilities which will enable them to be gainfully employed after graduation. The maximum class size is 25 and the selection procedures have been established by the State Department of Education.

O.W.E. students will spend the early part of the school day in the classroom and at least three hours per day will be spent working in the establishments of cooperating employers.

Employers interested in the program may contact Groff at Teays Valley High School. Phone 983-3131 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Registration Open At Pickaway School

Alfred Gabriel, principal of the Pickaway Township School, announces that all students new to the area who have not registered, should register for school immediately.

Elementary students should register in the principal's office on the first floor of the school, 28158 Kingston Pike. Students may be registered 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday.

A birth certificate and immunization record is required when registering first grade students. Registration at Pickaway Township is not necessary if children have attended the McDowell Exchange Kindergarten.

The opening date is Aug. 29 for a full day of school.

Ferguson Act Sleeping Legal Monster

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some people on both sides in the current controversy over collective bargaining for public employees say Ohio's Ferguson Act is a sleeping legal monster.

It outlaws strikes by public workers. Yet, Ohio has been described in legislative committee hearings as one of the most strike-prone areas of the U.S. in both public and private sectors, although the act doesn't apply to the private sector.

Attempts to invoke it over the years have generally been unsuccessful, but on the other hand, so have repeated efforts in the legislature to repeal it.

The main reason in the latter instance is that it stands as a tough public policy in the minds of many who find it repugnant that public servants would leave their jobs.

Sponsors of the current repealer in the legislature have admitted the recent firemen's strike in Dayton — in which fireman watched as homes and buildings burned — may have set back their cause once again.

What kind of an atmosphere prevailed in the legislature when the late Sen. David M. Ferguson of Cambridge had his bill enacted back in 1947? Had there been a rash of strikes that prompted it?

Frank W. King, former long time president of the Ohio AFL-CIO and a legislator of that era, shared some of his thoughts about those questions. A "get tough on labor" attitude existed in those days, King recalls, and it didn't involve strikes by public workers. "I can't remember any (public strikes)," he said.

However, King, 66, noted that the Ferguson Act and the original Taft Hartley Act were sponsored by Republicans the same year, and said he thinks it was a result of "feather-bedding" which occurred on the part of management as well as labor during the World War II years.

During the war effort, he said, defense plants and others operated on a "cost plus" basis, getting a percentage of costs, whatever they were, as profit. "The more people they hired, the more they made," King said. And this meant a lot of workers, he said, "didn't have anything to do."

As a result, King said when the war ended, employers had to return to efficient management "and the labor force had to learn how to work again." That was the situation in Ohio and the nation as a whole, he said.

Ricksha Business Serious

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — The Conrail freight rumbles by, spewing blue-white diesel smoke into the warming early morning air. A horn sounds its arrival.

Tom Hatcher, asleep on a railroad right-of-way nearby, stirs and then awakens from his bed on an Oriental-style ricksha. He gathers his blankets and stows them under his seat and trots off for a day of ricksha-pulling along the city's mall.

He doesn't look Oriental, doesn't speak Japanese and the setting doesn't resemble Tokyo. Nevertheless, Hatcher does pull the two-wheel cart on the mall and at 15 cents a ride it's the cheapest transportation around.

Against all appearances, Hatcher is serious about his new business.

"It's free enterprise. It's ecological. It's American," he said.

Mornings begin on the railroad siding where he frequently sleeps in the ricksha he built. "All you have to do is pull out the seat and slide it down for a bench," he said. "My bedding is under the seat."

He calls it his "mobile home."

Aside from the noise of the trains and an occasional insect bite, Hatcher described his outdoor existence as precisely what he wants in life now. "When summer comes, I prefer to live outdoors," he said.

The ricksha was built from odds and ends. He rummaged through garbage cans to find suitable bicycle wheels, found some discarded plywood and pine for the frame and had a friend help with welding.

"I used to be down on cars," he said. "But I'm not down on anything anymore," Hatcher said.

If the economics of the ricksha business look bad from a distance, they don't look any better from the tow bar. Hatcher said he earned $5 one Saturday and $15 the following Saturday. His $15 day, however, was helped substantially by customers who gave him $12 in tips.

At 15 cents a ride, Hatcher acknowledged low income is the mark of his business. "I don't know what would maximize my profit," he said. "If people have a dime, they'll give me a dime. But usually they don't have 15 cents so they give me a quarter. People are pretty generous."

Profit maximization is largely theory to Hatcher. During the off-season, he is a graduate student at Western Michigan University, studying physics, mathematics and economics.

Hatcher said he called several city officials to check on the legality of the ricksha enterprise. City Manager Robert Bob said he had no problem with the ricksha, Hatcher recalled, but another official warned Hatcher would need insurance.

"So I went to some insurance companies," Hatcher said. "They said they would charge me $100 for ricksha insurance. But I haven't had any accidents so far."

Business is growing. In the planning stage are modifications to the ricksha that include a canopy and a pedal system for driving the vehicle. "Right now, I'm small," he conceded. "But everybody starts out small."

EPA Exhibit At Fair Shows How To Clean Up Oil Spill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Last year, the Environmental Protection Agency responded to 1,000 reports of pollutant spills. That's why their exhibit at the Ohio State Fair shows how to clean up an oil spill.

The exhibit is not as exotic as it sounds. There is no miniature tanker exuding oil on a tiny scenic lake. It comes from a large plastic container into what looks like a child's wading pool.

Wes Drake, of the EPA, said the agency wants people to know about its cleanup program because "the key is prompt notification."

Spills on Ohio waterways are not as notorious as the big tankers which break up on the ocean, but Drake said the EPA responded to almost 500 reports of oil spills last year and about 500 additional cases of hazardous chemical spills.

Drake said he is the central district on-scene coordinator of emergency response for the EPA, a job he describes as "half cop, half detective and roving chemist" as he works to protect Ohio's waterways from dangerous chemicals and materials.

Attendance Wednesday was 158,250. On Tuesday, the first day of the 124th exposition, attendance was 154,300, slightly lower than last year's opener of 169,017 and well below the 1973 record of 200,000.

One innovation at this year's fair was Wednesday's auction — sight unseen — of 486 Junior Fair barrows by an eight-line telephone conference call hookup.

Buyers bid on the barrows from their offices in such places as Sandusky, Detroit and Grove City, and they paid a higher average price than in past years when they had to go to the fairgrounds to bid.

Amy Waugh, 17, of Jackson, was elected Ohio Future Farmers of America queen. In other competitions, the Wayne County Country Cousins and the Geauga County Cloverleaves tied for first place in square dance competition. Second place went to the Fairfield County Fads.

Today, Ohio Fair Managers' Day, offers a junior steer show, horse show, 4-H dairy cattle judging and harness racing. Rock-and-roll star Fats Domino headlines the grandstand acts for two performances.

The Agricultural Hall of Fame breakfast takes place Friday, which also is Crippled Children's Day and Governor and Legislators Day. Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis Jr. will provide grandstand entertainment.

The Republic of Liberia uses the U. S. dollar as its national currency.

King, first elected to the House in 1949, co-sponsored a bill to repeal the then two-year-old Ferguson Act, and got it through the House 69-68, the exact margin of Democratic control that year. But his bill hit a stone wall in the Senate, and "that's as close to repeal as we ever got," he said.

The former chief of nearly one million Ohio union members recalls Ferguson, "a very strict conservative," testifying against the 1949 repealer. He quoted him as saying it was "a privilege" to be a public employee. "He said your whole, total allegiance should be the public that you serve," King said.

Supper Club Fire Report Due Sept. 19

CINCINNATI (AP) — U.S. Rep. Thomas A. Luken, D-Ohio, has indicated Kentucky authorities may finally report their findings Sept. 19 on the fire that killed 164 persons May 27 at the Beverly Hills Supper Club.

Luken said his subcommittee had been assured by the office of Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll that results of the fire investigation would be revealed Sept. 19 although "the written report will not be made by then."

Luken announced Wednesday that the hearings scheduled in Cincinnati for Sept. 2 would be moved back to Sept. 19 to enable Kentucky authorities to complete their findings.

"I feel we must receive all the facts concerning the tragedy. A rush job is totally inappropriate. Sept. 19 is the final date," said Luken. "There will be no more delays."

Luken, who has authored legislation for a national fire code, said Rep. Robert Eckhardt, D-Tex., chairman of the subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, will preside at the Sept. 19 hearings.

The hearings were originally scheduled for Sept. 2, Luken said.

The subcommittee on July 29 in Washington began to consider both the Beverly Hills fire and a fire at the Maury County, Tenn., prison.

Luken said the Washington hearings were successful "but they just presented the tip of the iceberg. I believe these second round of hearings in Cincinnati will bring all the facts to light."

School Board Nixes Two Levy Proposals

FAIRFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Fairfield school board has defeated two proposals that would have placed one or more operating levies on the November ballot.

The two proposals were for a 3.5 mill operating levy and another proposal called for three levies totaling 7.6 mills.

School Supt. Dale E. Beckett has warned that local schools face the possibility of closing early during the next school year because of a lack of operating funds.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

It's difficult to realize that school will reopen soon, but vacationing students still have time to squeeze in a little more fun reading before the serious work begins. You can choose from a wide selection of books in the public library, including the following new additions to the Children's Room.

All ages can get a chuckle from Mercer Mayer's "Hiccup," a wordless picture book in which Mr. Hippopotamus overzealously attempts to cure his lady friend's hiccups only to catch them himself at the story's end. (E)

Rotten Ralph is a "mean-eyed, saw-toothed, bright red cat" whose constant tricks and naughty behaviour finally cause his owners to desert him. After receiving poor treatment and ridicule in a circus cage, being frightened by alley cats, and weakened by cold and hunger, he is found and rehabilitated (well... almost) by his forgiving family. Exceptional illustrations create half the fun in "Rotten Ralph." (E)

Intermediate level (grades 3-4) readers can find light entertainment in Charlotte Pomerantz's "Detective Poufy's First Case." A young girl secretly solves a case that baffles an adult detective in this humorous mystery-fantasy.

For grades 4-6 John Weston's "The Boy Who Sang the Birds" rates a gold

Audit Made Of Butler Sheriff's 'Posses'

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A private audit of the Butler County sheriff's mounted patrol and the sheriff's deputy organization has disclosed no irregularities, according to Sheriff Robert Walton.

The audit had been requested by the sheriff in June and covered the period from Jan. 1, 1976 through June 30, 1977.

Walton said he felt he had a responsibility to report to the public on the accountability of all funds for which the his department was even remotely responsible.

star. Soon after a small unusual boy mysteriously appears in its midst, a community finds itself overrun with birds. Ignoring an old woman's warnings to things to come, the townspeople plan to get rid of the birds and almost immediately find themselves at the mercy of a dangerous freak change in their weather. "This strange but sharply realized little fantasy is halfway between mood piece and parable; the harsh lines and cantankerous accents of Weston's shabby, remote American West give the magic a firm hold that the illustrator's misty realism reinforces beautifully." (Kirkus Reviews) Well written, illustrated, and designed.

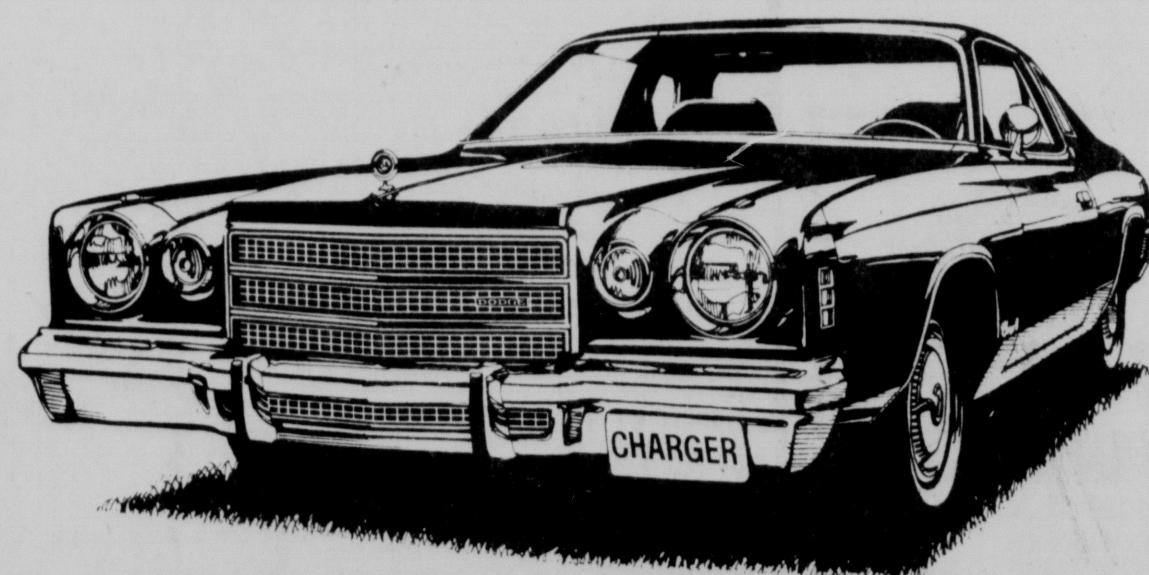

Also recommended is "The Stones of Green Knowe." L.M. Boston's sixth and final book in her Green Knowe series. This last book can be read and enjoyed alone, but children who have read its predecessors will find it especially attractive. This book is set in twelfth century England and introduces the boy who first lives in the old stone house which is the setting of the other stories.

Discovering two magic ancient chair-shaped stones near his home, he "wishes" himself through time, meeting descendants of his who live on the same land in future centuries up to the twentieth. An intriguing story that also informs about English life and custom after the Norman Conquest and briefly outlines some of the changes that have occurred through the centuries.

Happy reading!

Supper Club Fire Report Due Sept. 19

CINCINNATI (AP) — U.S. Rep. Thomas A. Luken, D-Ohio, has indicated Kentucky authorities may finally report their findings Sept. 19 on the fire that killed 164 persons May 27 at the Beverly Hills Supper Club.

Luken said his subcommittee had been assured by the office of Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll that results of the fire investigation would be revealed Sept. 19 although "the written report will not be made by then."

Luken announced Wednesday that the hearings scheduled in Cincinnati for Sept. 2 would be moved back to Sept. 19 to enable Kentucky authorities to complete their findings.

"I feel we must receive all the facts concerning the tragedy. A rush job is totally inappropriate. Sept. 19 is the final date," said Luken. "There will be no more delays."

Luken, who has authored legislation for a national fire code, said Rep. Robert Eckhardt, D-Tex., chairman of the subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, will preside at the Sept. 19 hearings.

The hearings were originally scheduled for Sept. 2, Luken said.

The subcommittee on July 29 in Washington began to consider both the Beverly Hills fire and a fire at the Maury County, Tenn., prison.

Luken said the Washington hearings were successful "but they just presented the tip of the iceberg. I believe these second round of hearings in Cincinnati will bring all the facts to light."

FAIRFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Fairfield school board has defeated two proposals that would have placed one or more operating levies on the November ballot.

Say Reds Behind Coal Strike

MADISON, W.Va. (AP) — Some people in the West Virginia coal lands say they believe the Communists are behind the wildcat strike which is idling 80,000 miners.

"You just look at the backgrounds of the people who are keeping this strike alive," said Harold Bias, the operator of a one-man barbershop in this Boone County community. "Most of them just turned up out of nowhere a couple of years ago. Some of them have even been to Cuba."

The barber said many miners who want to go to work are being intimidated. "They're threatened all the time you know. I say if you do some investigating, you'll find this strike is being kept alive by the Communists."

"That's right," agreed a woman who had brought two small boys into the shop. "Many people around here feel the Communists are financing the right-to-strikers."

Bonnie Wilcoxen, operator of a nearby beauty shop said her coal miner husband was anxious to get back to work. "It seems that the men who want to keep this strike going get out and hustle; they set up picket lines and make sure the strike continues."

"But the ones who want to work just sit home and do nothing. My husband's local was going to have a strike vote last week and only 50 of the more than 300 miners showed up."

"We're living out of our savings right now, but things are really rough for some families. My husband and I talk about it all the time. We just can't figure out why the men stay home and let a minority run their lives."

Good Cheer Returns To Lonz Winery

MIDDLE BASS ISLAND, Ohio (AP) — The reopened Lonz Winery is again giving Lake Erie island vacationers a chance to explore the castlelike winery where spirits and good cheer prevailed for 90 years.

The winery had been closed for two years after being sold at auction three times. The new owners, Terry Cornell and Jerry Sawicki of Toledo, bought it and about 170 acres for $281,000.

Although the cellars are still full of Lonz wine, it has to be tested to see if it's any good, said H.W. (Spike) Sch-winkendorf, who leases the property and sells draft beer, hot dogs, hamburgers and wine.

The present wine, however, is Meier's, made in Silverton, near Cincinnati, from grapes grown on North Bass Island. "It (the leftover Lonz wine) may be good only as a salad dressing," Schwinkendorf said.

"Wine production is being thought about," he added, "but it's not a priority. It would take three to four years just to get the vineyards back in shape." He said more pressing needs include repair of the marina and addition of a boutique and general store.

The reopening was especially

Department Re-Evaluating Priorities

CINCINNATI (AP) — Uncle Sam might decide it's better to pay the light bill at the local gym than preserving America the Beautiful.

Chris Delaporte, director of the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, said Sunday the department is re-evaluating its priorities for Congress next year and his walking tours of big cities has introduced him to "lots of angry people."

"A lot of people in the neighborhoods and cities are not getting anything," said Delaporte during a tour of Ohio's Little Miami River Valley, Cincinnati and Covington, Ky.

Delaporte said the emphasis on developing new recreation areas might shift to helping the public and private sector in developing indoor-outdoor recreation center that are "a 15-minute walk" for most citizens.

This includes, he said, organizations like the YMCA and YWCA which are buckling under high utility bills.

Delaporte said he would also like to see the federal government take a smaller role in operating federally financed recreation facilities. However, local and state agencies would have to prove their ability to maintain new programs in addition to existing facilities.

Delaporte also had some advice for the development of a stretch of the Little Miami River in southwestern Ohio. He encouraged the development but warned Morrow, Ohio, "Development brings a whole new set of problems. I've seen some communities blow it."

He recalled a community in the mountains of northern Georgia which transformed itself into an "Alpine village" trying to capitalize on the new business. The result, he said, was that it "ruined itself and disrupted itself."

Delaporte stressed balance, such as having residents "interpret" the history of their land to visitors.

"You can bring back the very best" of your history, he said.

He was invited to tour the valley by Ohioans who want his bureau to help enhance the river.

The area is also seeking an estimated $3 million to resurrect an abandoned railroad which runs 52.2 miles beside the scenic river. The line runs from Mariemont, outside Cincinnati, to Spring Valley south of Xenia.

Delaporte said the only other project of the Little Miami's scope competing for his $5 million budget so far is the C&O railway canal system around Washington D.C.

delightful for Capt. Ken Turvey, who runs the water taxi between Middle Bass Island and Put-in-Bay. "It's been kind of slim pickings for me since it's been closed," he said while helping to unload 15 passengers who paid $1.50 each to ride across the bay.

Schwinkendorf said he has stationed a uniformed private patrolman at the winery's entrance to help keep things under control. Winebibbers have been known to become boisterous.

Former Ohio Staters To Be Honored

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three former Ohio State University faculty and staff members will receive distinguished service awards at the summer quarter commencement Aug. 31.

Awards will go to Ralph S. Paffenbarger, chairman emeritus of the engineering graphics department; Gordon B. Carson, assistant to the chancellor of Northwood Institute and former Ohio State vice president for business and finance; and Frances E. Naylor, former senior counselor in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The commencement for some 2,070 summer quarter graduates will be held at St. John Arena.

Vo-Ed Division Sponsors Conference

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Education's division of vocational education is sponsoring a four-day conference running through Aug. 18 for distributive education coordinators.

The conference is examining communication skills, evaluation and psychology of learning.

Distributive education combines high school classroom instruction in marking, distribution with on-the-job training in retailing, wholesaling and service.

More than 350 coordinators representing about 250 Ohio school districts are attending the conference.

Receiving the rites of baptism at the Methodist Church on Sunday morning were Daniel Damon Welch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Damon Welch, Route 1, and Cade Michael Sabine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sabine, Circleville.

Grandparents present were Mr. and Mrs. John Kerns, Route 1, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sabine, Circleville, and Mr. George Stith, Fort Thomas Ky., and the Rev. and Mrs. Raymond Welch, Route 1.

Miss Kelly Hedges, daughter of Dean Hedges, Florida, visited several days with her grandmother, Mrs. Genevieve Hedges.

Mrs. Hazel Potts, Lancaster, visited Friday with her sister, Mrs. Marietta Ash.

Eight members attended the recent meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

There was discussion about the halloween Parade to be held in October.

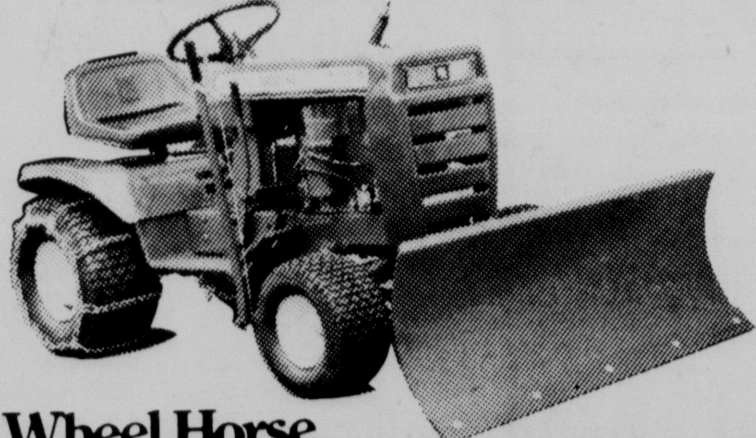

The Auxiliary is inviting the Tarlton Firemen and their families to a wiener roast to be at the Janie Berry home on Aug. 20 at 5 p.m., with the auxiliary furnishing the hot dogs, buns, tea and lemonade. Those attending are requested to bring their own table service.

In case of rain the wiener roast will be Aug. 21 at 5 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jenkins were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Catanzaro, Chicago, Illinois.

The Kings Helpers Class of the Methodist Church will have their monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jenkins on Aug. 20, at 7:30 p.m. instead of Aug. 27, as originally scheduled.

Good Cheer Returns To Lonz Winery

MIDDLE BASS ISLAND, Ohio (AP) — The reopened Lonz Winery is again giving Lake Erie island vacationers a chance to explore the castlelike winery where spirits and good cheer prevailed for 90 years.

The winery had been closed for two years after being sold at auction three times. The new owners, Terry Cornell and Jerry Sawicki of Toledo, bought it and about 170 acres for $281,000.

Although the cellars are still full of Lonz wine, it has to be tested to see if it's any good, said H.W. (Spike) Sch-winkendorf, who leases the property and sells draft beer, hot dogs, hamburgers and wine.

The present wine, however, is Meier's, made in Silverton, near Cincinnati, from grapes grown on North Bass Island. "It (the leftover Lonz wine) may be good only as a salad dressing," Schwinkendorf said.

"Wine production is being thought about," he added, "but it's not a priority. It would take three to four years just to get the vineyards back in shape." He said more pressing needs include repair of the marina and addition of a boutique and general store.

The reopening was especially

Department Re-Evaluating Priorities

CINCINNATI (AP) — Uncle Sam might decide it's better to pay the light bill at the local gym than preserving America the Beautiful.

Chris Delaporte, director of the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, said Sunday the department is re-evaluating its priorities for Congress next year and his walking tours of big cities has introduced him to "lots of angry people."

"A lot of people in the neighborhoods and cities are not getting anything," said Delaporte during a tour of Ohio's Little Miami River Valley, Cincinnati and Covington, Ky.

Delaporte said the emphasis on developing new recreation areas might shift to helping the public and private sector in developing indoor-outdoor recreation center that are "a 15-minute walk" for most citizens.

This includes, he said, organizations like the YMCA and YWCA which are buckling under high utility bills.

Delaporte said he would also like to see the federal government take a smaller role in operating federally financed recreation facilities. However, local and state agencies would have to prove their ability to maintain new programs in addition to existing facilities.

Delaporte also had some advice for the development of a stretch of the Little Miami River in southwestern Ohio. He encouraged the development but warned Morrow, Ohio, "Development brings a whole new set of problems. I've seen some communities blow it."

He recalled a community in the mountains of northern Georgia which transformed itself into an "Alpine village" trying to capitalize on the new business. The result, he said, was that it "ruined itself and disrupted itself."

Delaporte stressed balance, such as having residents "interpret" the history of their land to visitors.

"You can bring back the very best" of your history, he said.

He was invited to tour the valley by Ohioans who want his bureau to help enhance the river.

The area is also seeking an estimated $3 million to resurrect an abandoned railroad which runs 52.2 miles beside the scenic river. The line runs from Mariemont, outside Cincinnati, to Spring Valley south of Xenia.

Delaporte said the only other project of the Little Miami's scope competing for his $5 million budget so far is the C&O railway canal system around Washington D.C.

Miners May Defy Back-To-Work Order

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — Despite return to work orders from United Mine Workers officials, miners at some Ohio mines say they probably won't be back on the job until Monday.

Miners involved in wildcat strikes in southeastern Ohio have been returning to work slowly since UMW District 6 President John Guzek ordered Tuesday that they end their walkouts.

But officials at Southern Ohio Coal Co. Meigs No. 2 mine in Meigs County said workers there probably won't be back on the job until Monday. Local union officer Frank Stiltz said miners are afraid of threats by other striking miners.

Southern Ohio Coal Co. reported its two mines in Meigs County and one in Vinton County were idle Wednesday even though no pickets were reported. The Peabody mine in Perry County also was shut down Wednesday. Pickets were reported at the mine.

There were reports that a large group of southern West Virginia miners were to be in southern Ohio Wednesday night to picket mines.

For the second night in a row, the Belmont County sheriff's department called out its entire force plus several auxiliary officers to cope with any problems.

A spokesman for the sheriff reported early today that "a few" pickets were in the county around midnight, but there was no violence.

Guzek said miners should honor picket lines established by other union members, but he said few pickets have been set up in Ohio or the northern West Virginia area, which also is part of the district.

The strike is an outgrowth of a walkout started in UMW District 17 in southern West Virginia where miners are protesting a decrease in health benefits. Roving pickets from that district have drifted into other areas and kept miners from going to work. Violence has been threatened if miners do not honor the strike.

Judge Okays Kent State Gymnasium

KENT, Ohio (AP) — A federal judge gave the go ahead for construction of a disputed gymnasium annex at Kent State University to resume today, but the contractor awaited an appeals court decision before sending crews back to work.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Lambros in Cleveland ruled Wednesday that construction could resume near the site of the 1970 shootings of 13 students by the Ohio National Guard.

But attorneys for the May 4th Coalition planned to appeal the ruling to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Coalition members planned a mass meeting on campus today to decide whether to do more than picket the construction site.

Lambros ruled that to extend his bar against the $6 million project would constitute judicial interference in a state matter in which the federal court lacks authority.

"It's not for this court to direct the legislature or the governor," said Lambros.

The judge's decision sparked predictable reactions from both sides.

"The judge didn't bite the bullet and take the constitution and enlarge it," said coalition attorney William Kuntzler.

Kent State Trustee Michael Johnson said he believes the university should go ahead and build the gym because there already have been "a tremendous amount of delays that have cost the taxpayers a tremendous amount of money that they shouldn't have had to spend."

Coalition member Hope Foster said the protestors have to be "in a red alert condition" whenever construction resumes.

"We have to block that construction, not necessarily through mass arrest though," she said.

Acting Kent State President Michael Swartz said he feels informal efforts to find alternatives to the gym construction "have not been fruitful." And he added that "any future action is in the hands of the signators to the contract...the state of Ohio and the general contractor."

Robert Luxmore, vice president of the primary contractor for the building, said he will wait for the appellate court's decision, but it will be several days before he can get a construction crew together again. Work was halted by Lambros July 29.

Evangelists Protest At County Fair

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP) — Small groups of evangelists continued to protest at the gates of the Shelby County fairgrounds Wednesday as religious music festival was being conducted inside.

Evangelist demonstrators shouted Bible verses and called festival goers "fornicators and filth" but did not make any attempt to enter the fairgrounds or disrupt the festival.

The Way International's seventh Rock of Ages Christian Music Festival was expected to draw up to 18,000 persons before it ended Sunday. The Way is a nondenominational research and teaching ministry founded in 1942. It is headquartered in New Knoxville, Ohio.

Realtors Challenge City's Ban Of 'For Sale' Signs

FOREST PARK, Ohio (AP) — The right to put up a "for sale" sign has become a much-talked about freedom in this suburban community of 19,000 residents.

City officials have been wrestling with the problem since 1975 when an ordinance was passed banning all such real estate signs.

The U.S. Supreme Court in May declared a similar law in New Jersey unconstitutional because it infringed on free speech guarantees.

Since that decision, Forest Park officials have lifted the ban and has devised two successive revisions to replace it.

The latest ordinance calls for a permit fee of $2.50 on "for sale" signs and legislates the distance the sign must be from the front property line. It also establishes some guidelines on the size of the sign. A previously imposed ban on "sold" signs remains in effect.

A local realtor, along with the Cincinnati Board of Realtors has filed suit in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, challenging the current ordinance as unconstitutional.

"The city is restricting free speech for the purpose of accomplishing segregated housing," argued Joseph Trauth, who is representing the realtors.

"The realtors are being prevented from using a key marketing tool," Trauth said.

City officials admit that integration played a part in their thinking when the initial ordinance was passed.

"Some realtors were taking an overt approach in their solicitations," said City Councilman Chuck Imhoff, who said the ordinance was enacted to prevent "panic selling" by local homeowners, who might sell their homes in haste out of fear of a change in the composition of the neighborhood.

Imhoff noted that during the years preceding the ordinance, there was a "fairly good growth in the number of blacks" in Forest Park.

"There was a lot of thought that blacks were being steered into Forest Park and away from other areas," said Imhoff, who noted that there was a good supply for moderately priced housing which was available in the city.

The ordinance stabilized the movement of blacks into Forest Park, according to Imhoff, who added that it was never intended to block such movement.

Elvis Mourners Killed By Auto

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two women were killed and another person was injured early today when a car hit them as they stood in the center of Elvis Presley Boulevard, part of the crowd keeping vigil outside the dead singer's mansion, police said.

Police arrested three women and one man several blocks away after the incident, which occurred about 3:30 a.m.

When the four persons, who are black, were brought back in handcuffs to squad cars in the mansion area for questioning, the predominately white crowd shouted racial slurs, witnesses said.

Capt. James Sinclair, night command duty officer, said the names of the victims and the four arrested were not yet available.

Dave Tenenbaum, an Associated Press photographer who was at the mansion, said he heard an "extremely loud impact sound and then I saw one body flung high into the air."

"One person's blouse or shirt was torn off by the impact," he said.

Tenenbaum said the car was traveling at a high rate as it sped away from the accident.

Tenenbaum said six or eight police officers had been standing in a 200-foot stretch of the median section of the four-lane residential street where the women were killed. Some 300 persons standing on the sidewalk across from Graceland Mansion were uninjured.

The latest ordinance calls for a permit fee of $2.50 on "for sale" signs and legislates the distance the sign must be from the front property line. It also establishes some guidelines on the size of the sign. A previously imposed ban on "sold" signs remains in effect.

A local realtor, along with the Cincinnati Board of Realtors has filed suit in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, challenging the current ordinance as unconstitutional.

"The city is restricting free speech for the purpose of accomplishing segregated housing," argued Joseph Trauth, who is representing the realtors.

"The realtors are being prevented from using a key marketing tool," Trauth said.

City officials admit that integration played a part in their thinking when the initial ordinance was passed.

"Some realtors were taking an overt approach in their solicitations," said City Councilman Chuck Imhoff, who said the ordinance was enacted to prevent "panic selling" by local homeowners, who might sell their homes in haste out of fear of a change in the composition of the neighborhood.

Imhoff noted that during the years preceding the ordinance, there was a "fairly good growth in the number of blacks" in Forest Park.

"There was a lot of thought that blacks were being steered into Forest Park and away from other areas," said Imhoff, who noted that there was a good supply for moderately priced housing which was available in the city.

The ordinance stabilized the movement of blacks into Forest Park, according to Imhoff, who added that it was never intended to block such movement.

Elvis Mourners Killed By Auto

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two women were killed and another person was injured early today when a car hit them as they stood in the center of Elvis Presley Boulevard, part of the crowd keeping vigil outside the dead singer's mansion, police said.

Police arrested three women and one man several blocks away after the incident, which occurred about 3:30 a.m.

When the four persons, who are black, were brought back in handcuffs to squad cars in the mansion area for questioning, the predominately white crowd shouted racial slurs, witnesses said.

Capt. James Sinclair, night command duty officer, said the names of the victims and the four arrested were not yet available.

Dave Tenenbaum, an Associated Press photographer who was at the mansion, said he heard an "extremely loud impact sound and then I saw one body flung high into the air."

"One person's blouse or shirt was torn off by the impact," he said.

Tenenbaum said the car was traveling at a high rate as it sped away from the accident.

Tenenbaum said six or eight police officers had been standing in a 200-foot stretch of the median section of the four-lane residential street where the women were killed. Some 300 persons standing on the sidewalk across from Graceland Mansion were uninjured.

Cappelletti Gains Spot In Rams' Backfield

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Without much fanfare, John Cappelletti has quietly become a solid running back for the Los Angeles Rams.

Now the 1973 Heisman Trophy winner wants a little more.

Cappelletti climaxed a brilliant career at Penn State four years ago by being selected as college football's outstanding player. But like many National Football League rookies, he was a seldom-used reserve in 1974.

The 6-foot-1, 217-pound native of Upper Darby, Pa., saw more action in 1975, being used primarily in short-yardage situations.

But his all-around ability earned him a starting job last year, and he responded by gaining 688 yards on 177 carries and catching 30 passes for 302 yards. In addition, his fine blocking helped running mate Lawrence McCutcheon rush for a team-record 1,168 yards.

"I want to improve and just do as well as I can," said the 25-year-old Cappelletti Wednesday at the Rams' Cal State-Fullerton training camp. "My goals are pretty basic: I'd like to play in a Pro Bowl game and make the All-Pro team someday.

"But the main thing is to improve every year, to play as many years as I can and to do a consistent job."

As a Heisman Trophy winner, Cappelletti was closely watched as a rookie. He carried 55 times for 198 yards, being used mostly in games that were decided by the time he made his appearance.

In 1975, he scored six touchdowns while gaining 158 yards in 48 attempts. While he didn't carry the ball as much as he had in his rookie year, he was employed in important situations much more so than in 1974.

Cappelletti earned his starting position in the preseason last year, averaging 4.8 yards per carry and leading the team with 17 receptions.

He gained over 100 yards in each of Los Angeles' first two regular-season games, but took a back seat to McCutcheon statistically after that. McCutcheon not only set a team record for most yards gained in a season, but his 291 carries established another mark.

Baseball Meetings End Early

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The major league's baseball meetings have ended early with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn gaining renewed powers and major league franchises deciding to keep all their minor league teams.

A proposal to allow major league teams to drop support of their AA minor league club was defeated Wednesday "in a divided vote," Kuhn announced at a news conference following the day-long meetings.

The defeat of the amendment was something of a surprise. As a cost-cutting measure, it would have left major league franchises obligated to support only one AAA and one A minor league team.

"Each team will continue support of AAA, AA and A clubs," Kuhn said.

By unanimous vote, the owners agreed wording in the Professional Baseball Rules to grant the commissioner's office the power to take away a team's draft choices and levy a fine up to $250,000 for tampering with another team's player. The move was prompted by a recent court decision involving Atlanta owner Ted Turner, wherein a federal judge ruled that Kuhn could not take Atlanta's draft choices because such powers were not spelled out in major league by-laws.

In other action, the owners voted to: Switch the interleague trading period from Feb. 15-March 15 to March 1-April 1, retain the ban on player incentive bonuses and prohibit players from adding contract language that

Montreal Sues Expos

For Leaving Stadium

MONTREAL (AP) — The city of Montreal has sued the Montreal Expos of baseball's National League for $716,373 in Quebec Superior Court.

The suit, filed Wednesday, alleges the Expos still have a valid lease on Jarry Park where the team played seven seasons, which does not expire until March, 1978. The city claims it didn't get notice that the team planned to move from the 28,500-seat Stadium until March, 1977.

The Expos began playing at Jarry Park in 1969 and moved to the Olympic Stadium this spring.

Most of the money claimed by the city is the team's share of renovating Jarry. The city wants $538,318 plus about $167,000 in interest. Another $12,000 is from a clause in the lease which promised Montreal five per cent of gate receipts.

Cowboys-Redskins

Game Oct. 16 Sold Out

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys registered their earliest sellout in history Wednesday when fans bought up the last tickets to the Oct. 16 game against the Washington Redskins.

The National Football League team also said there was a heavy demand for their Nov. 14 game against St. Louis.

Yanks Jump On Detroit Pitching

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN

AP Sports Writer

Milt May said Fernando Arroyo "was throwing real good," which is a normal thing for a catcher to say about his pitcher except that not too many of Arroyo's pitches got as far as May.

New York's Mickey Rivers hit Arroyo's first pitch for a home run. Roy White tripled on the next delivery and Thurman Munson picked on pitch No. 3 for a double.

At that point, May had no idea what kind of stuff Arroyo had. He hadn't caught one yet. And nine pitches later — a Reggie Jackson strikeout and a

Chris Chambliss triple — Arroyo was gone, the losing pitcher as the Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers 7-5.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers cooled off the Boston Red Sox 5-3, the Texas Rangers inched into first place in the AL West by nipping the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5 in 10 innings, the Seattle Mariners edged the Minnesota Twins 3-2 and the Kansas City Royals defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

After the Yankees kayoed Arroyo, John Hiller yielded a single to Willie Randolph for the final run of the first inning.

"I thought he (Arroyo) was throwing real good," May said. "He had good velocity. Fernando threw as good as he has all year. You've got to give the hitters credit."

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

Two-run homers by Don Money in the first inning and Jamie Quirk in the fourth off Rick Wise enabled Milwaukee to snap the Red Sox' latest winning streak at five games. Quirk's third homer of the season provided the decisive margin as the Red Sox lost for only the second time in their last 18 games. Their AL East lead was trimmed to three games over idle Baltimore and 3½ over the Yankees.

Rangers 6, Blue Jays 5

Jim Sundberg delivered a two-strike, two-out single to score Toby Harrah from second base in the bottom of the 10th inning and propel the Rangers into first place in the West, one-half game ahead of the Chicago White Sox, who were idle, and Minnesota.

Mariners 3, Twins 2

Dan Meyer's two-run single through a drawn-in infield in the seventh inning snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Paul Mitchell his first victory of the season. The Twins made it 3-2 in the eighth on singles by Dan Ford and Mike Cubbage and Roy Smalley's run-scoring grounder.

Royals 5, Indians 3

John Mayberry slugged a three-run homer in the first inning but Kansas City needed RBI singles by Hal McRae and Pete LaCock in the eighth to break a 3-3 tie. The fourth-place Royals are only 1½ games off the pace in the torrid West Division race.

Phillies Drubbed, 13-0

By TOM CANAVAN

AP Sports Writer

It may have been the law of averages or it may have been a touch of fate. Whatever it was, it certainly confused Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark.

"How can you account for us losing tonight with our best pitcher," Ozark wondered following the Philadelphia's 13-0 drubbing at the hands of the Montreal Expos.

Ozark may have been baffled by the loss that snapped the Phillies 13-game winning streak, the longest in the majors this season, but Expos' Manager Dick Williams and his Expos seemed to have all the answers — especially when it concerned Steve Carlton's pitching.

"They're an excellent club, but if you're going to get beat, that's the best way," Williams smiled after the game. "However, you'll see a different game tomorrow, and it sure won't be lopsided."

A run-scoring single by Sam Mejias, Stan Bahnsen's perfect squeeze bunt, Dave Cash's single and Warren Cromartie's 35th double produced four Montreal runs in the second.

Gary Carter continued the Montreal onslaught in the third with the first of his two home runs on the night, a two run shot, to give the Expos a 6-0 lead game off Carlton, 17-7.

In other National League action, St. Louis blanked New York 2-0, Atlanta whipped Houston 9-6, Chicago edged Pittsburgh 4-2, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 7-4 and the game between San Francisco and Los Angeles was rained out.

Cardinals 2, Mets 0

Bob Forsch fired a two-hitter and Hector Cruz and Mike Tyson drove in sixth inning runs as St. Louis broke a three-game losing streak.

Forsch, 15-5, gave up a first-inning single to Bruce Boiesclair and a sixth-inning single to Lenny Randle in recording his sixth complete game of the season.

Cubs 4, Pirates 2

Bobby Murcer drilled two home runs and Rick Reuschel struck out 11 batters to give Chicago their second consecutive win over Pittsburgh.

Reuschel, 16-5, won his first game since a relief victory on July 28. He scattered eight hits and walked three.

Padres 7, Reds 4

Rookie Bill Almon drove in five runs, including three on his second major league home run, and San Diego took advantage of five Cincinnati errors in snapping a three-game losing streak.

Almon drilled a three-run homer in the fourth and added a two-run single in the fifth in supporting Bob Shirley's seventh win in 22 decisions. Rollie

The suit, filed Wednesday, alleges the Expos still have a valid lease on Jarry Park where the team played seven seasons, which does not expire until March, 1978. The city claims it didn't get notice that the team planned to move from the 28,500-seat Stadium until March, 1977.

The Expos began playing at Jarry Park in 1969 and moved to the Olympic Stadium this spring.

Most of the money claimed by the city is the team's share of renovating Jarry. The city wants $358,318 plus about $167,000 in interest. Another $12,000 is from a clause in the lease which promised Montreal five per cent of gate receipts.

Cowboys-Redskins
Game Oct. 16 Sold Out

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys registered their earliest sellout in history Wednesday when fans bought up the last tickets to the Oct. 16 game against the Washington Redskins.

The National Football League team also said there was a heavy demand for their Nov. 14 game against St. Louis.

Yanks Jump On Detroit Pitching

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

Milt May said Fernando Arroyo "was throwing real good," which is a normal thing for a catcher to say about his pitcher except that not too many of Arroyo's pitches got as far as May.

New York's Mickey Rivers hit Arroyo's first pitch for a home run. Roy White tripled on the next delivery and Thurman Munson picked on pitch No. 3 for a double.

At that point, May had no idea what kind of stuff Arroyo had. He hadn't caught one yet. And nine pitches later — a Reggie Jackson strikeout and a

Chris Chambliss triple — Arroyo was gone, the losing pitcher as the Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers 7-5.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers cooled off the Boston Red Sox 5-3, the Texas Rangers inched into first place in the AL West by nipping the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5 in 10 innings, the Seattle Mariners edged the Minnesota Twins 3-2 and the Kansas City Royals defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

After the Yankees kayoed Arroyo, John Hiller yielded a single to Willie Randolph for the final run of the first inning.

"I thought he (Arroyo) was throwing real good," May said. "He had good velocity. Fernando threw as good as he has all year. You've got to give the hitters credit."

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

Two-run homers by Don Money in the first inning and Jamie Quirk in the fourth off Rick Wise enabled Milwaukee to snap the Red Sox' latest winning streak at five games. Quirk's third homer of the season provided the decisive margin as the Red Sox lost for only the second time in their last 18 games. Their AL East lead was trimmed to three games over idle Baltimore and 3½ over the Yankees.

Rangers 6, Blue Jays 5
Jim Sundberg delivered a two-strike, two-out single to score Toby Harrah from second base in the bottom of the 10th inning and propel the Rangers into first place in the West, one-half game ahead of the Chicago White Sox, who were idle, and Minnesota.

Mariners 3, Twins 2
Dan Meyer's two-run single through a drawn-in infield in the seventh inning snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Paul Mitchell his first victory of the season. The Twins made it 3-2 in the eighth on singles by Dan Ford and Mike Cubbage and Roy Smalley's run-scoring grounder.

Royals 5, Indians 3
John Mayberry slugged a three-run homer in the first inning but Kansas City needed RBI singles by Hal McRae and Pete LaCock in the eighth to break a 3-3 tie. The fourthplace Royals are only 1½ games off the pace in the torrid West Division race.

Phillies Drubbed, 13-0

By TOM CANAVAN

AP Sports Writer

It may have been the law of averages or it may have been a touch of fate. Whatever it was, it certainly confused Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark.

"How can you account for us losing tonight with our best pitcher," Ozark wondered following the Philadelphia's 13-0 drubbing at the hands of the Montreal Expos.

Ozark may have been baffled by the loss that snapped the Phillies 13-game winning streak, the longest in the majors this season, but Expos' Manager Dick Williams and his Expos seemed to have all the answers — especially when it concerned Steve Carlton's pitching.

"They're an excellent club, but if you're going to get beat, that's the best way," Williams smiled after the game. "However, you'll see a different game tomorrow, and it sure won't be lopsided."

A run-scoring single by Sam Mejias, Stan Bahnsen's perfect squeeze bunt, Dave Cash's single and Warren Cromartie's 35th double produced four Montreal runs in the second.

Gary Carter continued the Montreal onslaught in the third with the first of his two home runs on the night, a two run shot, to give the Expos a 6-0 lead game off Carlton, 17-7.

In other National League action, St. Louis blanked New York 2-0, Atlanta whipped Houston 9-6, Chicago edged Pittsburgh 4-2, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 7-4 and the game between San Francisco and Los Angeles was rained out.

Cardinals 2, Mets 0

Bob Forsch fired a two-hitter and Hector Cruz and Mike Tyson drove in sixth inning runs as St. Louis broke a three-game losing streak.

Forsch, 15-5, gave up a firstinning single to Bruce Boiesclair and a sixth-inning single to Lenny Randle in recording his sixth complete game of the season.

Cubs 4, Pirates 2

Bobby Murcer drilled two home runs and Rick Reuschel struck out 11 batters to give Chicago their second consecutive win over Pittsburgh.

Reuschel, 16-5, won his first game since a relief victory on July 28. He scattered eight hits and walked three.

Padres 7, Reds 4

Rookie Bill Almon drove in five runs, including three on his second major league home run, and San Diego took advantage of five Cincinnati errors in snapping a three-game losing streak.

Almon drilled a three-run homer in the fourth and added a two-run single in the fifth in supporting Bob Shirley's seventh win in 22 decisions. Rollie seems right now that coordinating activities in the initial stages of start-up will be our biggest problem, along with the general hassle that always seems to go along with new equipment not functioning properly. We expect our equipment to run right, but anyone who has worked with machines very much knows that there are always a few bugs to be worked out at first."

Sewage Treatment . . .

One question that many residents of the city have been heard to ask is "will our sewage treatment plant produce an offensive odor like the Columbus treatment plant on U.S. Route 23?"

Houdeshell answers by saying that the problem in Columbus is a combination of many things. But rather than dwell on Columbus, he spoke of Circleville's facility. "Being a newer plant than the one at south Columbus, we have some equipment here that is not at Columbus," he stated. "We have a very good odor removal system here in the plant. There may be a musty, earthy odor, something like that of a room that has been closed up all summer, but I really wouldn't call it an offensive odor. A person would probably have to be right on top of one of the treatment tanks to smell even that. I really don't foresee any type of offensive odor effecting the city from the sewage treatment plant."

In a tour of the plant, Houdeshell explained the treatment process to the Herald from the time the sewage flows into the wet well some 60 feet below the ground until the dry solids are deposited in the lagoon at the west end of the facility.

What follows is a simplified, step by step explanation of the treatment process on the layman's level.

The wet well of the sewage treatment facility is where the raw sewage actually enters the plant from the lines that run under the river. As the sewage flows in the wet well some 60 feet down from the surface of the ground, it flows into a mechanical rake.

The function of the rake is to extract all foreign objects from the sewage so that processing equipment is not damaged. Sticks, cans, bottles, even rats and possums are removed by means of the rake. They are then hauled up to ground level and taken away by truck.

The next step in the treatment of the sewage is the comminutors. Here, the sewage is ground into a fine texture. This greatly reduces the possibility of equipment damage in the treatment process.

From the comminutors, one of the three giant 4,000,000 gallon-a-day-pumps lifts the sewage out of the wet well and starts it on its way into the various treatment processes.

The next phase of treatment takes place in the large concrete tanks that are visible from U.S. Route 22 as one drives by the plant.

The first step is the degritting tanks. Here sand, gravel, and bits of metal still present in the sewage are removed and taken away by truck.

Then it is on to the primary sludge settling tanks. Here, the solids in the sewage settle by gravity into the bottom of the tank, and a mechanical arm constantly scrapes the solids into the center of the tank. These solids are then pumped into a device called a cyclone degritter and then to a sludge conditioning process, and that is as far as those materials will go in the treatment process.

The remaining materials in the

Glenn Pushes For Arson Legislation

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Glenn said Wednesday he will push for hearings this fall on a bill that deals with arsonists whom he said are creating "a climate of fear" among Americans.

Speaking to the representatives of the Lucas County Association of Fire Chiefs, the Ohio Democrat said the growing number of fires set by arsonists are also inflating insurance rates.

"We are talking about a costly, wasteful and terrifying major crime," Glenn said. "We need to take the mantle of respectability off of this crime and expose it for what it is, a grave danger to life and property and an increasing menace throughout the country."

Glenn said he introduced a bill called the Arson Control Assistance Act last month that could start the country toward a major attack on arson. The bill proposes a two-pronged battle against arsonists.

First, arson would be categorized as a "major crime" for the first time under FBI record-keeping procedures. It would join murder, forcible rape, robbery, assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft.

Secondly, the bill would authorize the Law Enforcement Assistance Administrator to divert part of its allocated funds to assist communities that want to launch intensive antiarson efforts.

Such special squads have proven to be extremely successful when implemented in certain cities around the country, Glenn said.

The senator said damage losses cannot be estimated exactly, but more than 1,000 persons lose their lives each year in arson blazes.

sewage then flow into the aeration tanks. They are located behind the main buildings at the facility.

In the aeration tanks, air is forced into the system from three giant blowers. Any carbon materials in the sewage are eaten by bacteria that are present in the aeration tanks.

The bacteria are a vital key to the entire sewage treatment process. Houdeshell stated that many sewage treatment plants are designed and built almost exactly alike, but at the same time there are no two cities in the world that have the same bacteria scheme operating. The bacteria scheme in a plant depends on such variables as the size of the town, the type of sewage that is predominant in the treatment process, and local industries that empty their sewage into the treatment process, just to name a few.

"We are trying to give the bacteria in the tanks a perfect home," stated Houdeshell, "because they are getting food (from the carbon materials) and an air supply (from the air blowers). All we ask of the bacteria is that they eat as much carbon material as they can."

From the aeration tanks, the material goes to the secondary settling tanks. Here it undergoes another gravity settling period. The material that settles in the secondary settling tanks is a much finer and fluffier material.

After this treatment, the solid material is sent back to aeration as return sludge, and to the sludge thickening process as waste sludge. Sludge thickening is just what it implies—fine, fluffy sludge is combined to make a heavier, more dense sludge that makes treatment more economical.

When the sludge is returned to the aeration tanks, the bacteria again goes to work. Any bacteria that has stayed with the sludge through the secondary settling tanks have been without an air supply for quite some time. So when they are introduced back into the aeration tanks, the suddenly abundant air supply enables them to start feeding again at an extremely fast rate on the carbon material still present in the material.

After the secondary sludge treatment again, chlorine is injected into the material and it is sent to a chlorine contact tank, where it sits and the chlorine is allowed to thoroughly mix with the material and work on it.

The next step is for the water in the chlorine mix tank to be introduced to the river. The treatment process on the water is finished and it can safely be put back into the river and pass inspection standards.

The sludge still has to undergo the Zimpro heat treating process though, and this is the heart of the sewage treatment plant's operation.

"The Zimpro unit, simplified, is basically a giant pressure cooker," stated Houdeshell. The sludge, air and heat are combined at 400 degrees and 500 pounds of pressure. This process oxidizes the solid material. In the heart of the Zimpro unit is the heat exchanger—the sludge and air are combined in the heat exchanger, and surrounding the heat exchanger is another tube that contains the sludge that has already been oxidized. This method of operation enables the heat to be recycled and used over again instead of being wasted.

How does the operator know when the sludge has been in the Zimpro unit long enough? A pressure sensitive valve monitors the sludge in the heat exchanger and at a certain pressure it allows the treated sludge out and allows new material to flow in.

After leaving the Zimpro unit, the sludge is put into a storage tank. According to the treatment process, the sludge that once was raw sewage is now completely sterile.

From the storage tank the treated sludge is sent through a centrifuge. The centrifuge spins the sludge sending solids out one end and the liquids left in the material go out the other end of the unit.

The solids are then trucked away and deposited in the lagoon at the west end of the facility. The lagoon is the area of high earth that is visible from U.S. Route 22.

According to the Department of Public Utilities, the lagoon has the capacity for 20 years' worth of solid material. After that, a new lagoon will be constructed. There is enough room at the plant to construct several lagoons.

The sewage treatment plant is required by law to run certain tests on the final product, tests on raw sewage, and once a week, tests have to be run on Scioto River water both above and below the plant.

Tests on the final product alone include: water temperature; oxygen available to support life; P.H. acidity of the water; chlorine residual; biochemical oxygen demand over a five day period; suspended solids; amount of ammonia in the water; amount of nitrates and nitrites in the water; total phosphorus; fecal coliform; chemical oxygen demand; oil and grease total; levels of cadmium, chrome, copper, lead, nickel, zinc, and mercury—these are "heavy metals" that are toxic to the human body and to plant life; and tribidity, or cleanliness of the water. Some of these tests will be monitored daily, some weekly, and others monthly.

Tests that will be run on the raw sewage include: water temperature, PH acidity, biochemical oxygen demand over a five day period; and tests on suspended solids.

Weekly tests that will be run on the Scioto River above and below the plant include dissolved oxygen; biochemical demand over a five day period; PH acidity; and suspended solids.

These tests are the minimum demanded by the State and Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Houdeshell stated that in the entire operation, many more tests will be run to insure operators that the plant is performing its function to its best efficiency.

Houdeshell is a native of Newark, Ohio, and is a 1965 graduate of Newark High School. He attended the Ohio State University, and started his career at the Newark Waste Water Treatment Plant.

He was hired by the Circleville Board of Public Utilities on July 6, 1976, and he holds a State of Ohio EPA Class III operator's license in waste water treatment works. Houdeshell and his wife Lesley are the parents of a son, Jeff, who is nine years old.

A person would probably have to be right on top of one of the treatment tanks to smell even that. I really don't foresee any type of offensive odor effecting the city from the sewage treatment plant."

In a tour of the plant, Houdeshell explained the treatment process to the Herald from the time the sewage flows into the wet well some 60 feet below the ground until the dry solids are deposited in the lagoon at the west end of the facility.

What follows is a simplified, step by step explanation of the treatment process on the layman's level.

The wet well of the sewage treatment facility is where the raw sewage actually enters the plant from the lines that run under the river. As the sewage flows in the wet well some 60 feet down from the surface of the ground, it flows into a mechanical rake.

The function of the rake is to extract all foreign objects from the sewage so that processing equipment is not damaged. Sticks, cans, bottles, even rats and possums are removed by means of the rake. They are then hauled up to ground level and taken away by truck.

The next step in the treatment of the sewage is the comminutors. Here, the sewage is ground into a fine texture. This greatly reduces the possibility of equipment damage in the treatment process.

From the comminutors, one of the three giant 4,000,000 gallon-a-day pumps lifts the sewage out of the wet well and starts it on its way into the various treatment processes.

The next phase of treatment takes place in the large concrete tanks that are visible from U.S. Route 22 as one drives by the plant.

The first step is the degritting tanks. Here sand, gravel, and bits of metal still present in the sewage are removed and taken away by truck.

Then it is on to the primary sludge settling tanks. Here, the solids in the sewage settle by gravity into the bottom of the tank, and a mechanical arm constantly scrapes the solids into the center of the tank. These solids are then pumped into a device called a cyclone degritter and then to a sludge conditioning process, and that is as far as those materials will go in the treatment process.

The remaining materials in the sewage then flow into the aeration tanks. They are located behind the main buildings at the facility.

In the aeration tanks, air is forced into the system from three giant blowers. Any carbon materials in the sewage are eaten by bacteria that are present in the aeration tanks.

The bacteria are a vital key to the entire sewage treatment process. Houdeshell stated that many sewage treatment plants are designed and built almost exactly alike, but at the same time there are no two cities in the world that have the same bacteria scheme operating. The bacteria scheme in a plant depends on such variables as the size of the town, the type of sewage that is predominant in the treatment process, and local industries that empty their sewage into the treatment process, just to name a few.

"We are trying to give the bacteria in the tanks a perfect home," stated Houdeshell, "because they are getting food (from the carbon materials) and an air supply (from the air blowers). All we ask of the bacteria is that they eat as much carbon material as they can."

From the aeration tanks, the material goes to the secondary settling tanks. Here it undergoes another gravity settling period. The material that settles in the secondary settling tanks is a much finer and fluffier material.

After this treatment, the solid material is sent back to aeration as return sludge, and to the sludge thickening process as waste sludge. Sludge thickening is just what it implies—fine, fluffy sludge is combined to make a heavier, more dense sludge that makes treatment more economical.

When the sludge is returned to the aeration tanks, the bacteria again goes to work. Any bacteria that has stayed with the sludge through the secondary settling tanks have been without an air supply for quite some time. So when they are introduced back into the aeration tanks, the suddenly abundant air supply enables them to start feeding again at an extremely fast rate on the carbon material still present in the material.

After the secondary sludge treatment again, chlorine is injected into the material and it is sent to a chlorine contact tank, where it sits and the chlorine is allowed to thoroughly mix with the material and work on it.

The next step is for the water in the chlorine mix tank to be introduced to the river. The treatment process on the water is finished and it can safely be put back into the river and pass inspection standards.

The sludge still has to undergo the Zimpro heat treating process though, and this is the heart of the sewage treatment plant's operation.

"The Zimpro unit, simplified, is basically a giant pressure cooker," stated Houdeshell. The sludge, air and heat are combined at 400 degrees and 500 pounds of pressure. This process oxidizes the solid material. In the heart of the Zimpro unit is the heat exchanger—the sludge and air are combined in the heat exchanger, and surrounding the heat exchanger is another tube that contains the sludge that has already been oxidized. This method of operation enables the heat to be recycled and used over again instead of being wasted.

How does the operator know when the sludge has been in the Zimpro unit long enough? A pressure sensitive valve monitors the sludge in the heat exchanger and at a certain pressure it allows the treated sludge out and allows new material to flow in.

After leaving the Zimpro unit, the sludge is put into a storage tank. According to the treatment process, the sludge that once was raw sewage is now completely sterile.

From the storage tank the treated sludge is sent through a centrifuge. The centrifuge spins the sludge sending solids out one end and the liquids left in the material go out the other end of the unit.

The solids are then trucked away and deposited in the lagoon at the west end of the facility. The lagoon is the area of high earth that is visible from U.S. Route 22.

According to the Department of Public Utilities, the lagoon has the capacity for 20 years' worth of solid material. After that, a new lagoon will be constructed. There is enough room at the plant to construct several lagoons.

The sewage treatment plant is required by law to run certain tests on the final product, tests on raw sewage, and once a week, tests have to be run on Scioto River water both above and below the plant.

Tests on the final product alone include: water temperature; oxygen available to support life; P.H. acidity of the water; chlorine residual; biochemical oxygen demand over a five day period; suspended solids; amount of ammonia in the water; amount of nitrates and nitrites in the water; total phosphorus; fecal coliform; chemical oxygen demand; oil and grease total; levels of cadmium, chrome, copper, lead, nickel, zinc, and mercury—these are "heavy metals" that are toxic to the human body and to plant life; and turbidity, or cleanliness of the water. Some of these tests will be monitored daily, some weekly, and others monthly.

Tests that will be run on the raw sewage include: water temperature, P.H. acidity, biochemical oxygen demand over a five day period; and tests on suspended solids.

Weekly tests that will be run on the Scioto River above and below the plant include dissolved oxygen; biochemical demand over a five day period; P.H. acidity; and suspended solids.

These tests are the minimum demanded by the State and Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Houdeshell stated that in the entire operation, many more tests will be run to insure operators that the plant is performing its function to its best efficiency.

Houdeshell is a native of Newark, Ohio, and is a 1965 graduate of Newark High School. He attended the Ohio State University, and started his career at the Newark Waste Water Treatment Plant.

He was hired by the Circleville Board of Public Utilities on July 6, 1976, and he holds a State of Ohio EPA Class III operator's license in waste water treatment works. Houdeshell and his wife Lesley are the parents of a son, Jeff, who is nine years old.

Glenn Pushes For Arson Legislation

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Glenn said Wednesday he will push for hearings this fall on a bill that deals with arsonists whom he said are creating "a climate of fear" among Americans.

Speaking to the representatives of the Lucas County Association of Fire Chiefs, the Ohio Democrat said the growing number of fires set by arsonists are also inflating insurance rates.

"We are talking about a costly, wasteful and terrifying major crime," Glenn said. "We need to take the mantle of respectability off of this crime and expose it for what it is, a grave danger to life and property and an increasing menace throughout the country."

Glenn said he introduced a bill called the Arson Control Assistance Act last month that could start the country toward a major attack on arson. The bill proposes a two-pronged battle against arsonists.

First, arson would be categorized as a "major crime" for the first time under FBI record-keeping procedures. It would join murder, forcible rape, robbery, assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft.

Secondly, the bill would authorize the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to divert part of its allocated funds to assist communities that want to launch intensive antiarson efforts.

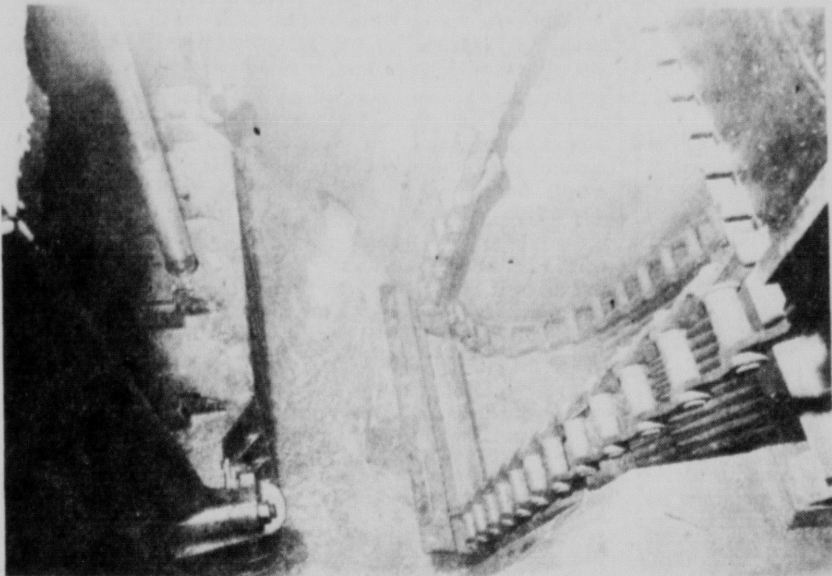

Such special squads have proven to be extremely successful when implemented in certain cities around the country, Glenn said.

The senator said damage losses cannot be estimated exactly, but more than 1,000 persons lose their lives each year in arson blazes.

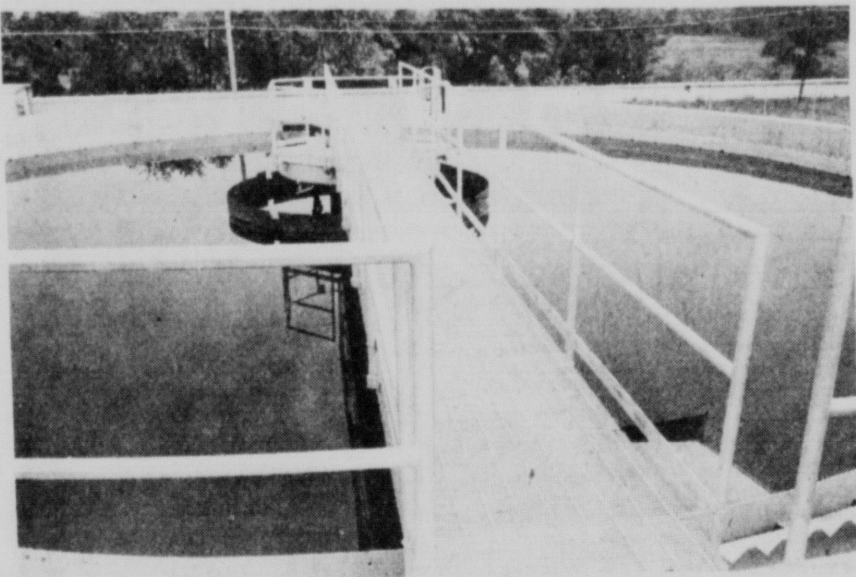

There Are Many Steps In Sewage Treatment Process

The sewage enters the plant at the wet well (1) and is pumped into the treatment process by one of the giant pumps, rated at 4,000,000 gallons a day (2). The many pumps in the pump room make sure that the materials get to their proper destinations (3). The primary settling tanks are one of the first steps in the process where sludge is separated from water (4). The giant air blowers (5) insure an adequate air supply for the bacteria in the aeration tanks (6).

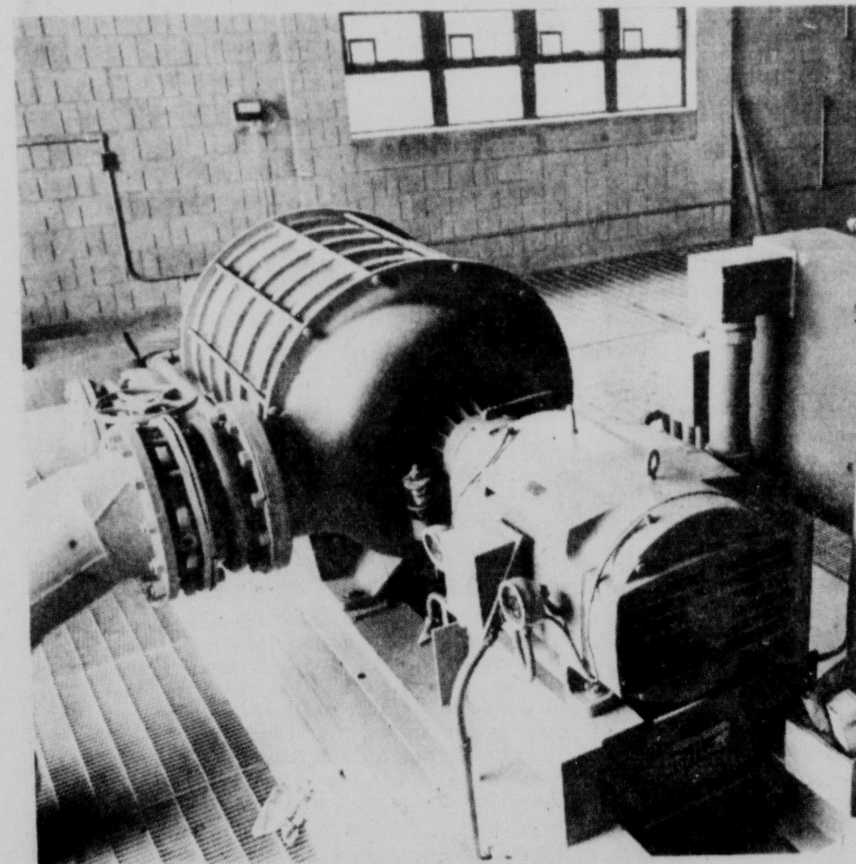

The next step are the secondary settling tanks (7) where fine, fluffy solids are removed. The Zimpro units (8) sterilize the sludge in an oxydation process that is the key to the treatment process. The next step is the centrifuges (9) where the oxydized sludge is spun, separating liquids from solids. The solids are then deposited in the lagoon at the treatment plant. The control panel (10) allows one man to monitor the entire operation of the plant from one location.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): If you're planning an unusual venture, it would be wise to "go it alone" for the present. Associates may be unreliable or impractical.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): A good word from the right source may enable you to attain the recognition you have been seeking. You have just cause for optimism.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Stick close to facts and control your imagination. Don't try to put a square peg into a round hole. Pick your way discreetly.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You may face some complications — in quite unexpected areas. How you handle situations and the pace you set will determine their solution.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): What's expedient is not always wise. Be careful where and when you must refuse, consent, or dismiss suggestions from your mind. But don't automatically reject another's idea.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Face possible changes with equanimity. With YOUR know-how and ingenuity, you can cope. Romance in high favor.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Certain problems which have been bothering you may be resolved now. Good deeds of the past may also pay off. It should be a very happy day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): An auspicious period! Go after whatever is worthwhile — with all the vigor you can muster. By-pass trifles which interfere with essentials.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Personal relationships at their best. In fact, a friend or close associate may be instrumental in helping you to solve a difficult situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Try not to set too fast a pace — either for yourself or others. You could find that you've expended a lot of time and energy to no useful purpose.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't start anything without knowing if you can follow through. All efforts and ambitions must be carefully directed now. Neither follow new trends blindly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be careful in handling personal affairs; there may be some tricky areas, a few kinks to iron out before taking action. Some conflict of interests indicated.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine intellect and are extremely progressive in your thinking. You have a flair for the dramatic but, unlike many Leoites, are usually more attracted to business than the stage. Your sense of the theatrical evidences itself no matter what career you pursue, however. In either business or governmental positions, your leadership is such that those under your supervision, drawn to you almost magnetically, follow with almost blind loyalty; in the legal field, your histrionics would make you an excellent trial lawyer. Other fields in which you could shine: finance, invention, exploration, archeology. But you do belong in public life. Birthdate of: Bernard Baruch, economist, financier; Orville Wright, airplane inventor; Jill St. John, film actress.

Industry sources here say Lorimar Productions, maker of the gentle "Waltons," is negotiating for TV rights to a "nonfiction novel" that uses the facts, but not all the names, of the S.O.S. case.

The book, tentatively called "Son of Sam," is being hurriedly written by Fun City columnist Jimmy Breslin, close to the case ever since he got a letter from "Sam," and sportswriter Dick Schaap.

Lee Rich, president of Lorimar, declined comment when asked if his firm is dickering with Breslin's agent for the book, scheduled for publication in October by Viking Press.

Seaver Shines NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver, former star righthander of the New York Mets, now of the Cincinnati Reds, was the National League Pitcher of the Month for April. Tom started five games in that month, winning four and not figuring in the other decision.

Seaver pitched 41 innings and had an ERA of 1.54. He fanned 32 men and walked only nine. He had two shutouts. One of his victories was a one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs on April 17, the fifth one-hitter of his career. He had a string of 25 consecutive scoreless innings from April 12 to the 22nd.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Redd Foxx left NBC after four "Sanford and Son" seasons, he groused that NBC never had shown interest in ideas he'd proposed for television shows. That was in April.

But when a scribe this month inquired what ideas are proposed for his new one-hour ABC variety series, the veteran comic, executive producer of the show, adopted a somewhat secretive manner.

He said portions of the proceeding will be taped outside the studio, but when asked about the show's format, he only said: "We're trying to find out what the public might go for..."

Guests for the show? Well, Foxx said, he'll have "new comics, new singers and some older ones who've never been seen, some friends that never had a shot at television."

The only guest he was specific about is a friend from his lean days as a comic, a fine vocalist name of Damita Jo who broke in years ago with a group called Steve Gibson and the Red Caps, he said.

He said she'd be a regular. He also said Gerald Wilson, fairly well-known in jazz circles, will lead the show's band.

Foxx, 56, seemed to have a severe case of the uneasies during a hurried interview he didn't seem particularly happy to do.

But his face lit up when he was asked if there'd be some jazz on his show if, say, trumpeter Clark Terry, featured on "Tonight" when it was in New York, happened to be in Los Angeles for a club date.

"Clark's an old pal of mine, we're both from St. Louis," he beamed. "I'm sure if he's in town, we might just have a trumpetfest, bring in Dizzie Gillespie. They've been friends of mine for years."

It's not unusual for a network to pressure a variety show host to put on Big Names — established stars or stars of the network's other shows — in hope of getting big ratings or plugging those other shows.

But Foxx says ABC isn't pulling that on him: "Now, I have no pressure on me. None at all."

Foxx, who had well-publicized disputes with NBC while there, was asked if he has any beefs with ABC, his new employer, so far.

"No, none at all. They've been very nice to me," he said, softly adding: "No sweat."

I guess it was bound to happen. A TV show may be made about New York's highly publicized "Son of Sam" and the six .44-caliber killings attributed to him over a year's time.

Industry sources here say Lorimar Productions, maker of the gentle "Waltons," is negotiating for TV rights to a "nonfiction novel" that uses the facts, but not all the names, of the S.O.S. case.

The book, tentatively called "Son of Sam," is being hurriedly written by Fun City columnist Jimmy Breslin, close to the case ever since he got a letter from "Sam," and sportswriter Dick Schaap.

Lee Rich, president of Lorimar, declined comment when asked if his firm is dickering with Breslin's agent for the book, scheduled for publication in October by Viking Press.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Redd Foxx left NBC after four "Sanford and Son" seasons, he groused that NBC never had shown interest in ideas he'd proposed for television shows. That was in April.

But when a scribe this month inquired what ideas are proposed for his new one-hour ABC variety series, the veteran comic, executive producer of the show, adopted a somewhat secretive manner.

He said portions of the proceeding will be taped outside the studio, but when asked about the show's format, he only said: "We're trying to find out what the public might go for..."

Guests for the show? Well, Foxx said, he'll have "new comics, new singers and some older ones who've never been seen, some friends that never had a shot at television."

The only guest he was specific about is a friend from his lean days as a comic, a fine vocalist name of Damita Jo who broke in years ago with a group called Steve Gibson and the Red Caps, he said.

He said she'd be a regular. He also said Gerald Wilson, fairly well-known in jazz circles, will lead the show's band.

Foxx, 56, seemed to have a severe case of the uneasies during a hurried interview he didn't seem particularly happy to do.

But his face lit up when he was asked if there'd be some jazz on his show if, say, trumpeter Clark Terry, featured on "Tonight" when it was in New York, happened to be in Los Angeles for a club date.

"Clark's an old pal of mine, we're both from St. Louis," he beamed. "I'm sure if he's in town, we might just have a trumpetfest, bring in Dizzie Gillespie. They've been friends of mine for years."

It's not unusual for a network to pressure a variety show host to put on Big Names — established stars or stars of the network's other shows — in hope of getting big ratings or plugging those other shows.

But Foxx says ABC isn't pulling that on him: "Naw, I have no pressure on me. None at all."

Foxx, who had well-publicized disputes with NBC while there, was asked if he has any beefs with ABC, his new employer, so far.

"No, none at all. They've been very nice to me," he said, softly adding: "No sweat."

I guess it was bound to happen. A TV show may be made about New York's highly publicized "Son of Sam" and the six .44-caliber killings attributed to him over a year's time.

Industry sources here say Lorimar Productions, maker of the gentle "Waltons," is negotiating for TV rights to a "nonfiction novel" that uses the facts, but not all the names, of the S.O.S. case.

The book, tentatively called "Son of Sam," is being hurriedly written by Fun City columnist Jimmy Breslin, close to the case ever since he got a letter from "Sam," and sportswriter Dick Schaap.

Lee Rich, president of Lorimar, declined comment when asked if his firm is dickering with Breslin's agent for the book, scheduled for publication in October by Viking Press.

Seaver Shines

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver, former star righthander of the New York Mets, now of the Cincinnati Reds, was the National League Pitcher of the Month for April. Tom started five games in that month, winning four and not figuring in the other decision.

Seaver pitched 41 innings and had an ERA of 1.54. He fanned 32 men and walked only nine. He had two shutouts. One of his victories was a one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs on April 17, the fifth one-hitter of his career. He had a string of 25 consecutive scoreless innings from April 12 to the 22nd.

Symphony Slate

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Itzhak Perlman, a well-known young violinist, will be one of the featured artists during the 34th season of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra, according to symphony officials.

Perlman, who has recently been on a tour of Europe, will play two concerts, one of them the opening performance of the orchestra's new Glastonbury Series. Other guest soloists chosen by conductor Arthur Winograd include pianists Andre Watts and Lorin Hollander.

The "Pops" series will be continued in the 1977-78 season with programs including "A Musical Tribute to George Gershwin" and "An Evening of Bacharach, Bernstein and The Beatles."

WORK TO FREE DRIVER — Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, Deputy Jim Fite, and members of the Circleville Emergency Medical Team work to free

Phyllis Mettler, 26, 22521 Smith Hulse Road, from the wreckage of her car Wednesday morning.

Nine Injured In Accidents

Nine people were injured in two auto accidents investigated Wednesday by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies. A woman and five children suffered multiple bruises and abrasions in a single car accident 11:05 a.m. Wednesday on Tarlton Road, one mile east of Route 56.

Phyllis A. Mettler, 26, 22521 Smith-Hulse Road, was driver of the car, according to Deputy Jim Fite. She was apparently driving west and topping a small hillcrest when she was forced to swerve her car to the right to avoid a collision with an oncoming car.

The car went off the right side, recrossed the road, and traveled into a ditch, where it hit a farm fence and rolled to its top.

The children were able to escape from the wrecked auto, but Mrs. Mettler was trapped under the seat of the car. Helping her from the car were Deputy Fite, Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, and members of the Circleville Emergency Medical Team, who also gave on-the-scene treatment to the injured.

Further treatment was rendered at Berger Hospital's Emergency room.

Children injured in the accident were Laura Mettler, eight months; Samuel Mettler, 3; Toby Mettler, 6; Bryan Mettler, 11; and Howard Mettler, 13.

Three people were hurt in an 11:50 p.m. Wednesday accident at the intersection of the Morris Salem Road and Tarlton Road.

None of the injuries were serious, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Bill Carmean, although one of the passengers was thrown from the car as it was rolling over.

Ted Lewis Museum Discusses Ceta Employee

The Ted Lewis Museum Committee Wednesday discussed the hours and guidelines for a job at the museum which will be filled by the county under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

The CETA position was offered to the committee by the Pickaway County Commissioners. The employee will enable the committee to keep the museum open six days a week.

It presently is opened 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, staffed by members of the committee.

In other business yesterday the committee discussed Pumpkin Show hours, a pamphlet about Ted Lewis, post cards and accepted the resignation of Earl Palm from the committee.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 21 at Pickaway Arms.

Court, told Deputy Carmean that he was driving south on the Morris Salem Road and approaching the unfamiliar intersection when he lost control of his car.

The car traveled across a lawn at the 7523 Tarlton Road home of Clarence Fausnaugh, crossed the road, crashed down an embankment, and rolled over. Three rods of fence and posts owned by David Bolender, 23644 Ringgold-Southern Road, were damaged.

Foreman suffered a sprained right shoulder and a bruise to his left knee, and a passenger, Joyce Foreman, 17, 505 Tower Court, suffered a small laceration and sprain to her right knee.

A second passenger, Jeff Hardman, 17, 25030 Morris Salem Road, was treated for a sprained back, a laceration to his right forearm, and a ruptured blood vessel in his right foot. He was thrown from the car while it was rolling.

Emergency aid was administered by members of the Circleville Emergency Medical Team, and the three people were also treated at Berger Hospital.

Recover Stolen Van In Columbus

A van, stolen from the Orient home of James Fortney and used to carry away merchandise taken from his house, was recovered in Columbus, Wednesday morning.

The van and items from Fortney's home were taken Aug. 8, according to Pickaway County Sheriff's Detective J. Phillip Brown, who worked with Deputy Lowell Ferguson on the recovery.

They found the van about 10:20 a.m. Wednesday. It was parked in the lot of an abandoned ice cream building in the 1600 block of S. High St. in Columbus.

Judge Orders Probation For Columbus Defendants

Two persons, charged with grand theft, were placed on probation for three years each by Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer.

Probation was ordered for Mark Allen Brubaker, 18, Columbus, and Carol Hensley, 31, Columbus, after they pleaded guilty to charges of grand theft.

Brubaker, charged April 16 with stealing an eight-track stereo tape player, was given a suspended 18 months to five year sentence in the Mansfield Reformatory.

He was ordered to stay out of the county, to admit himself for in-patient treatment at a halfway house, and to not use liquor or drugs.

Hensley was charged with illegally receiving Aid to Dependent Children payments and food stamps in the amount of $980 from the Welfare Department.

Judge Ammer suspended a six month to five year term in the Marysville Reformatory of Women and ordered Hensley to make restitution.

Trial dates were set for four other defendants, who entered not guilty pleas at arraignment Wednesday.

Trial for Robert Seagraves, Route 1, Circleville, will be Oct. 18. Seagraves is charged with aggravated menacing.

Trial date for Charles Wesley Self, Mt. Sterling, will be Oct. 18. He is charged with felonious assault.

Trial date for James Douglas Cochenour, Williamsport, will be Sept. 30. He is charged with breaking and entering and grand theft.

Trial date for James E. Bare, Lockbourne, will be Sept. 28. He is charged with aggravated burglary and grand theft.

Ted Lewis Museum Discusses Ceta Employee

The Ted Lewis Museum Committee Wednesday discussed the hours and guidelines for a job at the museum which will be filled by the county under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

The CETA position was offered to the committee by the Pickaway County Commissioners. The employee will enable the committee to keep the museum open six days a week.

It presently is opened 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, staffed by members of the committee.

In other business yesterday the committee discussed Pumpkin Show hours, a pamphlet about Ted Lewis, post cards and accepted the resignation of Earl Palm from the committee.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 21 at Pickaway Arms.

Court, told Deputy Carmean that he was driving south on the Morris Salem Road and approaching the unfamiliar intersection when he lost control of his car.

The car traveled across a lawn at the 7523 Tarlton Road home of Clarence Fausnaugh, crossed the road, crashed down an embankment, and rolled over. Three rods of fence and posts owned by David Bolender, 23644 Ringgold-Southern Road, were damaged.

Foreman suffered a sprained right shoulder and a bruise to his left knee, and a passenger, Joyce Foreman, 17, 505 Tower Court, suffered a small laceration and sprain to her right knee.

A second passenger, Jeff Hardman, 17, 25030 Morris Salem Road, was treated for a sprained back, a laceration to his right forearm, and a ruptured blood vessel in his right foot. He was thrown from the car while it was rolling.

Emergency aid was administered by members of the Circleville Emergency Medical Team, and the three people were also treated at Berger Hospital.

Recover Stolen Van In Columbus

A van, stolen from the Orient home of James Fortney and used to carry away merchandise taken from his house, was recovered in Columbus, Wednesday morning.

The van and items from Fortney's home were taken Aug. 8, according to Pickaway County Sheriff's Detective J. Phillip Brown, who worked with Deputy Lowell Ferguson on the recovery.

They found the van about 10:20 a.m. Wednesday. It was parked in the lot of an abandoned ice cream building in the 1600 block of S. High St. in Columbus.

Judge Orders Probation For Columbus Defendants

Two persons, charged with grand theft, were placed on probation for three years each by Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer.

Probation was ordered for Mark Allen Brubaker, 18, Columbus, and Carol Hensley, 31, Columbus, after they pleaded guilty to charges of grand theft.

Brubaker, charged April 16 with stealing an eight-track stereo tape player, was given a suspended 18 months to five year sentence in the Mansfield Reformatory.

He was ordered to stay out of the county, to admit himself for in-patient treatment at a halfway house, and to not use liquor or drugs.

Hensley was charged with illegally receiving Aid to Dependent Children payments and food stamps in the amount of $980 from the Welfare Department.

Judge Ammer suspended a six month to five year term in the Marysville Reformatory of Women and ordered Hensley to make restitution.

Trial dates were set for four other defendants, who entered not guilty pleas at arraignment Wednesday.

Trial for Robert Seagraves, Route 1, Circleville, will be Oct. 18. Seagraves is charged with aggravated menacing.

Trial date for Charles Wesley Self, Mt. Sterling, will be Oct. 18. He is charged with felonious assault.

Trial date for James Douglas Cochenour, Williamsport, will be Sept. 30. He is charged with breaking and entering and grand theft.

Trial date for James E. Bare, Lockbourne, will be Sept. 28. He is charged with aggravated burglary and grand theft.
